GREBNOCK (Scotland,) Feb. 11 .- [By Cable and Associated Press.] The Allan line steamer Pomeranian, from Glasgow for New York, returned here after a terrible experience. When out 1200 miles, during a heavy storm, everything above decks was swept away by a huge wave which boarded the vessel when nobody was prepared for it. John Cook and John Hamilton first and second officers; James Pritchard and Fred Westbury, stewards Peter McLean and William Uronhart seamen; James and Lillian Gibson Jane Caffery and John Stewart, of the first cabin, and Peter Forbes, of the second cabin, were washed overboard and drowned. Capt. Dalziel was dashed against the bulwarks, and so severely hart that he died the next day The vessel was then put about, and started back under command of the third officer.

ONE HUGE WAVE. The Pomeranian encountered boisterous weather immediately after leaving port. It was thought the wind would soon blow itself out, but instead of abating the gale increased in severity until the day of the disaster. The 4th of February dawned with a frightful gale raging and a tremendous high sea running. The hatches were battened down and covered with tarpaulins, the ventilators turned leeward, and every precaution, dictated by good seamanship, was taken to prevent the water getting below. Several seas were shipped, but they did no damage. Suddenly a tremendous sea reared its crest a short distance ahead A GENCY OF BALFOUR. GUTHRIE & Co., San Francisco. Commission merchants, importers of cement, coke, tinplate, chemicals, grain bage, etc. Money loaned on good farming lands, first-class city property, and grain and merchandise in warehouse. WM. R. FORTUNE, room 87, Baker Block. of the steamer, and as she plunged down and before she could rise a wave came over the starboard bow and showered tons of green water aft. Almost at the same time a falling wave astern came aboard. The result almost defies description. The deck of the saloon, the chart house, /bridge and boats were smashed to pleces and partly washed overboard. The deck was covered with an almost inextricable mass of wreckage and the utmost confusion reigned.

At first the full result of the disaster, was not known. The steamer began to pay off before the wind, and it was at e seen that the quartermaster had been carried overboard. Two sailors sprang to the wheel and soon put the steamer on her course. Then it was found that Capt. Dalziel was missing. He was last seen standing on the lee side of the steamer aft the saloon in conversation with a saloon passenge named John Stewart. They were both dashed against the deckhouse, then carried with terrific force and jammed beneath the steam winches. Capt. Daldel's legs were broken, and he sustained internal injuries. He was carefully removed to his cabin, but the next morning. Stewart's legs were also broken, and he sustained other injuries, from the effects of which he died in a few hours. At the time of the accident Second Officer John Cook was on the bridge with John Hamilton, fourth officer, and both of them were carried overboard and drowned. In the saloon deckhouse when the sea broke over the steamer, were James Gibson and Lillian Gibson of Dalkeith, and Jane Caffery of Londonderry, all cabin passengers. They were carried over the side and were not afterward seen. David Forbes of Dun-dee, a second cabin passenger, and James Pritchard and Fred Westbury, tewards, were also lost in the same

When the sea boarded the steamer every man on deck who saw it coming grabbed hold of the stanchions or any thing else convenient, and it is due to this that the loss of life was not much larger. For a time the utmost con-sternation prevailed, but this gave way For a time the utmost con to a feeling of sadness when it was found so many lives were lost.

With Capt. Dalziel fatally injured and inconscious in the cabin, the command of the steamer devolved upon the first uadrants, in fact, everything absolutely quadrants, in late, everything absolutely essential to the navigation of the ship, went with it. The pinnacle box and compass on the bridge had also gone overboard, and had it not been that another compass remained it is doubtful if the steamer and the averaged boxt for many days. DERSONAL-THE ART OF CUTTING AND mained it is doubtful if the steamer would have reached port for many days yet. The situation of affairs was terrible. The first officer called the remaining officers of the steamer to consultation, and it was decided to put about and return to Greenock. This was at once done, and, without any instruments with which to take observations, the vovere had to be made on struments with which to take observa-tions, the voyege had to be made en-tirely by dead reckoning, and was nec-essarily slow. The first officer is highly commended for skillful seamanship for having navigated the Pome-ranian under such adverse circumstances back to port.

THE SAD BURIAL AT SEA. The scene at the burial of Capt. Dalzell was one of the saddest ever wit-nessed at sea. The crew and passengers stood silectly weeping during the simple and mournful ceremony. The waves were running mountain high, and all felt that they, too, might soon be with the departed captain. The vet-ran sailors on board declare that, dur ing an experience of thirty years, the storm was the worst they had ever encountered. If the ship had not been staunch and the discipline good, they would have foundered. Although the discomfort endured was very great, no-body complained. Everybody looked forward with eagerness to a safe arrival on land, and all were only too glad to be alive to complain of lack of accommodations. The interior of the Pomeranian is badly damaged, and will require extensive repairs.

ciate Press.] The Figuro publishes an interview with Mme. Ferdinand de Lesseps, had since the conviction and sentence of her husband. She is as cour ageous and resolute as ever, and as ear nest as ever in her belief in her hus band's innocence. She said her husband was very weak; a week ago he was seized with delirium that lasted a day; then he had a relapse and has since remained in a state of coma.

Alluding to the severity of the sen-tence imposed on her husband and stepson, she said: "I prefer this; it is a fitting climax that both father and son should be condemned. The very enormity of the sentences will the better protect our honor than less thoroughgoing injustice would have done. ot need consolation, for I have reached the end of my career. Nevertheless, there is one thing above all I cannot forgive. That is, that before striking at such a man they waited until physical infirmity rendered it impossible for him to defend himself. It is better, perhaps, that Ferdinand de Lesseps should be unable to know the frightful character of the blow. When I think of the possibility of Ferdinand de Lesseps being put in prison, I ask myself whether I am dreaming."

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—[By the Associated Press.] The Republican Club tonight gave their Lincoln anniversary dinner. More than three hundred men distinguished in every walk in life, were present, and the orators of the occasion were from all parts of the country, each in his own way typifying and representing some sentiment or phase of national politics.

The club president, John S. Smith, presided. At his right sat Secretary of the Treasury Charles Foster, and at his left Col. Robert Ingersoll. Others at the guests' table were Dr. Chauncey M. Depew, Senator W. C. Squire of Washington, Congressman J. T. Hull of Iowa, Congressman J. C. Taylor of Ohio, Assistant Secretary of Porter and Congressman Johnson of North Dakota. President Smith, in making the opening address, said: "The little skirmish of last November was but a temporary triumph for Great Britain and the Anglomaniacs, which will be blown out in the great tide in the Republican victory that will sweep the party into power in 1896." Col. Ingersoll responded to the toast, "Abraham Lincoln." He said, in part:

"Abraham Lincoln was a strange min-gling of the tragic, heroic and grotesque, a personification of all that was gentle, just, humane and honest, merciful, laughable, lovable and divine, and all these sterling attributes he consecrated for the use of man. Lincoln had no ancestors; he had no fel-lows and no successor. How can we account for this great character in our history? He never abused power except on the side of mercy, and knew no fear except that of being wrong. His was the grandest figure of our times and the gentlest memory of our world."

Secretary of the Treasury Foster followed Co. [Ingerto]. lowed Col. Ingersoll, speaking for the administration. He thought the country now concedes that the great office of President is filled by as able a man as ever sat in that chair. He possesses many of the traits which have been many of the traits which have been described of Lincoln. He never did anything in the world he did not think was right. Headed by such a man, it is not surprising that his Cabinet and ministers have been unusually successful in their offices.

Chauncey M. Depew spoke to the toast of "The Republican Party." He said in part: "It is our pride and glory as a party that there has been neither incompetency nor corruption in Republican administration from Abraham Lincoln to Benjamin Harrison. The most explicit pledge of the Democratic platform was to repeal the purchasing clause in the Sherman Silver Act, but yet an imperial mandate from the chosen leader of the party calling on the Democratic House of Represen-tatives to fulfill this plank was answered when the Democratic Repre sentatives voted 'No,' and Mr. Bland sent back the defiant message: 'If Cleveland attempts to carry out those Chicago promises we, the majority of his party, will split the organization his party, will split the org and wreck his administration.' Senator Wolcott of Colorado re spended to "Our Departed Leader," speaking in eulogy of the life and services of Mr. Blaine.

MARBLE QUARRY DISASTER.

Several Men Killed, and Many Others

RUTLAND (Vt.,) Feb. 11 .- By the Associated Press. One of the worst disasters in the history of marble quarrying occurred at West Rutland, a little after 1 o'clock this afternoon The quarry is operated by the Marble Company. A great mass of stone fell into the quarry and seven men were instantly killed, and a num-ber of others injured. The victims crushed so that be recognized. The killed be recognized. The killed William Lukas, Frank Sulig, Ed-Alexander Blumbe recognized. The killed ward Powers, Alexander Blumquest and three unrecognizable men. The injured are: James Dooley, John Dunn, Charles Anderson, Fred Marchand, Anto Ractio, John G. Anderson, Peter Grenier, John Michan and Michael Cupps.

As soon as the accident happened the electric danger signal was rung in the company's offices and the mills, and work was everywhere stopped at once. All the doctors in West Rutland and All the doctors in West Rutland and Rutland were called by telephone, and responded quickly. Scores of men were also sent down into the quarry. The news soon spread to the streets, and hundreds of men, women and children hurried to the quarry, and by 5 o'clock the vicinity was crowded. In the crowd were many relatives of the dead or instead where were frants with greef. jured, who were frantic with grief. The accident was near the extreme and of the quarry, far under the hill. The killed and some of the injured are buried under tous of rock, and the work of rescue is necessarily difficult. The cause of the caving in is not positively known. E. B. Morse, treasurer of the company, says the cause is not certain, though the "scale," or part of the roof that fell, was probably loosened by frost.

Dr. Kempster Predicts a Fierce Outburst of Cholera.

Socialism-A Law and Order Party Possible-The Army Bill Not Ready.

By Telegraph to The Times. BERLIN, Feb. 11.-[By Cable and Associated Press.] Dr. Kempster, special health officer of the United States, has just arrived in Berlin, after a tour of aspection to Hamburg, Bremen, Cassel and Nietleben. He told a newspaper reporter today that he was convinced the present year would witness a fierce outburst of cholera all over the continent, and instead of being sporadic, as in 1892, the plague would sweep the whole of Europe. Dr. Kempster related the incidents connected with his visit to certain large towns, the local sanitary reports from which were unreliable. Dr. Kempster also discovered discrepancies between the published figures of cholera and the number of cases registered on the government lists, showing that the true figures were being kept from the public. Regarding the rags imported to the United States from infected ports, Dr. Kempster was inclined to agree with the suggestion of Consul-General Edwards, that disinfection on arrival in more effective than mere disinfection before shipment. The cholera visita-tion at Halle has died out. For five successive days during the past week the Reichstag has discussed the merits and demerits of socialism. No special resolution was involved, yet the bill has assumed the proportions of an important political and what was at first small apparent moment has rapidly developed into a general battle, and which has extended until it has arrested the attention of the whole country. The debate was attended with several exchanges of acrimonious Ian-guage. The talk in the lobby turned guage. The talk in the lobby turned upon the possibility of the debate assisting in bringing about the much hoped-for coalition of the various groups into a law and order party against the socialists, but the Freisinge and the Centre parties are separnige and the Centre parties are separ-ated by a gulf which is not possible to Presidential Nominations-A New Chines Minister to the United States-Congressional News and Washington Doings.

By Telegraph to The Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11. - [By the Asse ciated Press. | Mr. Colne, secretary of the American Committee, was again on the witness stand this morning before the Panama Investigating Committee.

Mr. Colne was examined with refer ence to accounts in the blotter hereto fore laid before the committee. His testimony threw no light on the entries. He stated he had not seen the books for four years, and could not explain the meaning of certain numbers, similar in character to other numbers used to denote the pages in the ledgers usually used in the blotter account books. Witness said he could not refer to the ledger, for there was none; an order system had been adopted, and it might refer to the number of an order.

Representative Geary evidently thought it possible the numbers might really refer to dollars, and that they either represented the amount actually paid while another amount was put under a regular dollar mark, or else they represented the . amount turned in and the other amount what was actually

In the Ingersoll account Mr. Geary said there were $5000 marked down and the two numbers there amounted to 19,750. Under the head of 'petty cash" was $100 down and also the numbers 22 marked in the account. Mr. Geary asked if $22 was not the amount actually expended and the other was the amount turned in, and the witness asserted that was not plausible or good and the number might refer to something else. To Mr. Geary, he said, when the financial statement was submitted to Paris it was accompanied by The letter book had bee kept, and he understood it was now in the possession of counsel. They were Bristow, Lynde and Stetson, and one of the firm of Seligman.

The committee then got into a discussion over the failure of the witnesses to appear. It was finally decided to go to New York on Monday for the examination of witnesses there. It was suggested that the committee go to Indiana and examine ex-Secretary Thompson. Mr. Geary said Thompson was evidently the man who transacted the business and who could throw the most light on the affairs, and who handled the money. Sellgman being simply the banker, Colne stated to the committee that Thompson knew scarcely anything about the accounts that he (Colne) attended to them, or course, submitting the statements to Thompson when he came into the office, which was only three or four times a

The only other important piece of legislation done was the agreement to the finance report on the Fortifications Bill and making the Nicaragua Canal Bill unfinished business.

A controversy, in which a good deal of heat and personal feeling was manifested, arose on the motion of Mr. Felton of California to take up for consideration the joigt resolution to provide for the appointment of a commission by the secretary of, the Interior to appraise the improvements made by actual settlers upon public lands, holding in good the world's amateur record.

House.-The Republicans in the House this afternoon filibustered against any limitatiou of the general debate on the Pension Appropriation Bill. The Democrats were finally compelled to yield the point, and the consideration of the bill was resumed with no limit on the talk.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—The session of the House today was without result. The attempt of the Democrats to limit the time for debate on the Pension Ap propriation Bill was firmly resisted by the Republicans, and the minority came out victorious. The result was that, without termination of the general debate, the House adjourned.

Messrs. Curtis and Harris opposed the amendments of the pension laws. On the other hand, Mr. Livingston ap-proved of them, and did so as a Southern man, reconstructed under his country's flag and under the oath to support the Constitution. No man would suffer more under the present pension system than the veterans who fought for the Union. If the present abuses continue the time would come when the masses of the people would go to the other extreme, and the old veterans would be injured. The Southern men were not opposed to pensioning Union soldiers. Long ago that question had been settled, not only as proper, but justifiable. He then proceeded to argue in favor of the transfer of the Design Burger, from the Interior to Pension Bureau from the Interior to the War Department. Political influence destroyed the whole organization The committee rose, and, after services in memory of the late Edward F. Mc Donal of New Jersey, the House ad-

THE DANGER OVER.

A Probable Water-right Scramble in Kern County. BAKERSFIELD (Cal.,) Feb. 11.- By the Associated Press.] The Kern River is still running high, but the danger is over. No lives have been lost, and not much damage except to railroads, canals done, and bridges, all of which have settled or given way. It is difficult to get particulars of the damage to the country below, but it is the general opinion that with the exception of the railroad and canal companies, the flood will do more good than harm.

The river, apparently, has changed its course, and if this is so, there will be a scramble for new water locations. and the Kern County Land Company, which controls all the present water rights, may lose its water monopoly. Bakersfield is not injured at all by the overflow. Only a few people left their dwellings, and only in one case did the water enter a house.

WARMER WEATHER. .The weather continues warm and light rain fell this morning. A good many people from the country came into town today, and they confirm the report that the overflow will prove of great benefit to farmers. For everal miles the Bakersfield and San Miguel Railroad, recently built, is badly damaged, and travel stopped. No mail, newspapers or trains from San Francisco over the Southern Pacific road have been received since Thursday night. Trains are running regularly between here and Los Angeles and the East. Fully $50,000 damage is done to the canal.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 11.-This morn ing a man, apparently 50 years of age, leaped from Meiggs's wharf and was drowned. The body was later identified as that of John Maloney, who, at one time, was worth about $250,000 and had a large interest in the Comstock mines. For tune did not continue to smile upon him however, and his money dwindled until three or four years ago, when he became penniless.

New York, Feb. 11.—[By the Associated Press.] Secretary of the Treasury Charles Foster, in an interview tonight regarding the financial situation, said: "I don't think the situation is critical enough to warrant an issue of bonds. The banks of New York today have $80,000,000 worth of gold, and they are ready, at any time, to give it to the United States in exchange for greenbacks. I don't think the failure to repeal the Sherman Silver act will result in driving gold out of the country. I believe the supply of gold is sufficient to meet all adequate demands. I don't consider the condition of the country at all critical. The tion of the country at all critical. The Government is in a position ts redeem all its promises, but I think the gold reserve ought to be increased.

"Is there any way of stopping the gold shipment abroad?" he was asked. "None that I am aware of," he re plied.

LOOKS BAD FOR PARKER.

The Former Night Clerk of the Westminster in Jail.

Arrested on a Charge of Petty Larceny leged Victims-His Side of the Story. Friday morning, Robert H. Parker, the whilom night clerk at the Westmin-ster Hotel, was arrested and placed in an iron tank in the City Prison, and yesterday, after considerable skirmishing fett, a charge of petty larceny was lodged against the young man, and at least one charge of grand larceny held in reserve, to be applied later if a way is clear. The specific charge against Parker is for stealing a rubber coat belonging to a guest, F. L. Hines, Supervisor of Streets of Salt Lake City, and one the junketers. The coat was found in the room of Parker, at No. 624 Grand avenue, Friday morning, when Parker was arrested.

The charge of grand larceny espec ially held in reserve for the theft of $80 cash, which some one, it is alleged, extracted from the pocketbooks of Mrs. Gorham and daughter of Santa Monica guests of the Westminster last Thurs day, the day before Parker was ar-rested, and for which he was tracked to his room.

There had been petty pilfering going on around the Westminster for quite a while, and on several occasions some heavy losses to guests occurred, much to their annoyance. A week ago a lady who had been writing in the room opposite the office, left her purse on the table. James D. Phelan called Manager Potter's attention to the matter, and Parker secured the book which he for. The next morning it was called for, and when the lady opened the purse she claimed that some one had robbed it of $16. This was charged up ger Potter sought the counsel and service of detectives, who shadowed Parker.

On Thursday last Mrs. Gorham and daughter came from Santa Monica to attend the Hancock Banning reception in the afternoon and the Severence attend the Hancock Banning reception in the afternoon and the Severence party at night, and secured rooms at the Westminster. On leaving in the afternoon Mrs. Gorham and her daughter left their purses, placing them in a small handbag, with Chief Clerk Bohn. Returning late they secured the bag, but returned it at 7:80, as they were leaving, delivering it to Chief Clerk Bohn again. The ladies claimed they asked him to put it in the safe; Mr. Bohn claims that they gave the same order as before, that gave the same order as before, that they would call for it. In any event the bag and contents were placed in the office behind the glass screen, where it laid until that midnight, when Parker, following the chief clerk's instructions, delivered it to the ladies, who immediately retired. The next morning at diately retired. The next morning a do o'clock Mrs. Gorham went to the office to pay her bill, when she discovered her money gone, as she alleges, stolen.

Potter sent for the detectives, who were in turn sent to Parker's room, where the arrest occurred. did not flinch, and has not yet for that matter, and by his manner would have scared the officers off except that they espied the rubber coat, which they knew from descriptions they had been carrying a week. The detectives also found $97 in a drawer in Parker's

The case of grand larceny which the officials hoped to fix is rather the officials hoped to fix is rather a doubtful one, inasmuch as the arguments of Parker are quite as convincing, as indications against him show. Parker points out the fact that Mrs. Gorham placed her money in the hands of another, who laid it carelessly behind a counter behind which saveral others was that hind which several others go; that the money was not discovered missing, if any was in the bag, until the next morning. Again, that the other lady's money had been in others' keeping in the twenty-four hours she was with-out it.

Parker claims the coat as his own. and argues that the firm who made that coat must have made many others simicoat must have made many others similar, and, as his name was in the coat and that of Mr. Hines was not, he had the best right to it.

Robert H. Parker is a young man, handsome, well-dressed gentlemanly in appearance and demeanor, and came here from Detroit, bringing with him the highest recommendations, and securing more here from prominent men. Parker had been night clerk at the Westminster about two months.

RAILROAD AFFAIRS.

No Southern Pacific Trains from San Francisco.

The Washout is Playing Havoc With the Traffic.

How a New Freight Tariff Affects Los Angeles Merchants.

Alleged to Be a Discrimination in Favor of San Francisco-General, Local and Personal Railroad

Notes.

On account of the bad washout on the road at Bakersfield, the particulars of which are related in the telegraphic columns, no train has arrived Angeles from San Francisco since Friday morning, with a liklihood of none getting through before Monday or Tuesday. Over a mile of track and bridge is washed out, and the water is yet too high to admit of much repair work being done. A train was despatched for the North yesterday, but could get no further than Bakersfield, and it returned thence to accommodate local travel. All trains on the Sunset route, between Los Angeles and El Paso, have run as usual, though the east-bound trains were without through cars. Officials of the road cannot promise when the track will be repaired so that trains can run through, but they hope to have it soon in such shape that passengers, baggage, mail and express can be transferred over the break. The road at the scene of the flood is described by eye witnesses as being badly wrecked, the roadbed being washed out completely, the tracks twisted, and all being buried beneath the water, mud and débris of the flood,

THE SOUTHERN PACIFIC'S NEW TARIFF. Los Augeles wholesale merchants feel very much concern over the new freight tariff just issued by the Southern Pacific, and which was referred to these columns a few days ago. By the new tariff all places on that company's lines in Southern California are placed on an equality as regards freight rates from San Francisco. Merchants in San Bernardino, Colton, Santa Ana, Anaheim, Pomona, Ontario and other places on the Southern Pacific lines, now pay exactly the same rate on their supplies of groceries, boots and shoes, dry goods and other commodities bought in San Francisco as are charged the merchants in Los Angeles. Heretofore the rates to the points have been proportionately higher than to Los Angeles, which was one point in favor of wholesale houses in this city. The wholesalers say that the Southern Pacific Company in trying to placate San Francisco merchants by this concession have discriminated against Los Angeles.

The Frogbel Society.
The Los Angeles Froebel Society held its regular monthly meeting Wednes-day at 2:80 p.m., in the music hall of the old Los Angeles College on West the old Los Angeles College on West Fifth street. After the usual preliminary business, the lessons on the second gift were given by Miss Davidson of Pasadena and Miss Kitty Mills of this city. Both lessons contained many novel and instructive illustrations. Miss Mills introduced the sphere by a charming original story, which led all thoughts imperceptibly to detect the similarities and dissimilarities between the ball and the sphere. The next meeting will be March 8, at 2:80 p.m., and promises to be particularly p.m., and promises to be particularly interesting. The programme will con-sist of practical lessons on the third, seventh and eighth gifts by Mrs. Nora D. Mayhen, president of the society, Miss Julia Bruere, and Mrs. Eveline Winslow. All interested are most cor-dially invited to be present at these meetings.

Thirtieth Pythian Anniversary. The six lodges of the order of Knights of Pythias have under arrangement the proper celebration of the thirtieth Pythian period of that organization.

The affair will be somewhat informal in its nature, and will consist of a musical and literary programme, to be followed by a dance, short impromptu addresses varying the programme. All Knights in the city will participate, and their ladies will join in making it a success. As the thirtieth anniversary occurs on Sunday the 19th this colebrations. curs on Sufiday, the 19th, this celebra-tion will be held at Illinois Hall on Sat-urday evening, the 18th, but it is ex-pected that on Sunday night Rev. GREAT ENTERPRISE.

A Plan to Reclaim the Mojave Desert.

Hundreds of Thousands of Acres to Be Brought Under Water.

The Mojave River to Be Dammed at Victor Narrows.

Least a Million and a Half Dollars Necessary to Carry Out the Plans as Proposed-Some Interesting Details.

An enterprise is now under way which, if carried to a successful culmination, will make a great inroad into the Mojave Desert, and transform a large portion of that barren waste into a fertile garden, rivaling the most favored spots of Southern California. Negotiations that have been pending for some time have just been brought to a stage which discloses the prodigious plans of the projectors of this enter-prise, and, though they are not yet eady to take the public into their confidence, a very fair outline of the plans has been obtained.

Some party or parties unnamed, said to represent great capital, from St. Paul or Minneapolis, have obtained A TOUGH TRIO

The police courts were very quiet yesterday. The charges against Harcourt, Dwyer and Murphy were sifted to the bottom, and it was determined to give them a light sentence, according to the crime on which they were convicted, and to rearrest them upon the termination of their sentence on a charge of burglary.

The people who have this enterprise in hand propose, according to the information obtained, to build in the Narrows a great dam, 17:1 feet high and from 75 to 150 feet long, between the huge granite precipices, which at this point form the walls of the canon, through which flows the Mojave River. This structure, to be made of granite blocks from the adjacent hills, will dam the water of the jacent hills, will dam the water of the river, and back it up so that it will cover a large area of desert in a basin inclosed by mountains, forming a great lake in the midst of surroundings of hold almost an incalculable amount of water to be used in transforming the vast area of now useless lands lying below its level. A survey of the region has just been completed, and it is said that fully 250,000 acres can be irrigated from the great reservoir. This is all Government land, which can be obtained in the usual way by whomso-ever wants it. The new water company intends to issue to prospective purchasers maps of the entire tract, showing the lines of irrigating ditches, and giving other data, charging 25 cents an acre for the same. Then the company will charge $40 an acre for the water furnished, at the rate of one the water furnished, at the rate of one inch to five acres, agreeing to buy back whatever land the settlers care to dispose of for $50 an acre. To the settlers who want to retain all the land the settlers are to dispose of the settlers who want to retain all the land the settlers who want t land the company proposes to give ten, twenty or thirty years' time for' payment. As this information comes from an unofficial source it may not be as explicit as it might otherwise be, but the above is about the plan of pro-

As the Southern California Railroad runs through the Narrows, and would, therefor, be submerged by the water of the dam, it will be necessary to remove the line of the road to another location a short distance westward, requiring the reconstruction of about eight miles of track. This, the water company offer to pay for if the project is carried out.

It is said that the cost of the site, building of the dam and canal and reconstructing the railroad will not be far from $1,500,000. The sum of nearly $3000 has already been expended in making surveys and procur-ing data for the use of the Eastern cap-italists. It is expected that colonists from the East can be brought out at once to take up nost of the land, which, under the magic power of water, can be made of wonderful fertility. Judge R. M. Widney, of the University Bank, was seen at his private office by a Times reporter last evening and asked about the matter, for he, being president of also of the Hesperia Land and Water Company, would be able to give some information on the subject. Judge Widney was at first adverse to telling anything about it, or even admitting that there was any truth in the mitting that there was any truth in the story, but finally consented to con-

"It is true," said he, "we have given a ninety-days' option on the land and dam site, but I don't know what it will amount to. It is proposed to build a dam in the Narrows about 171 feet high, and get water to irrigate about 250,000 acres. I don't know how much money is back of the scheme, or money is back of the scheme, or whether the projectors of it can carry it through. The plans are very ambitious and will call for a big expenditure of money. There is more to it even than you have heard. The lake that will be made by damming the river will cover a very large area. On the shore of this lake, at one of the best points for the purpose, and already selected, it is proposed to build a farge sanitarium. There will be the health-giving desert air, tempered by the great sheet of water, which will add beauty to the landscape."

"Minel;" that his father was dead, and that he had no brothers or sisters. A boy who-looks exactly like Oscar except in size, and claiming to be two years the senior, presented himself at police headquarters yesterday and related to Capt. Roberts how his brother, Oscar

Stowell, disappeared three weeks ago and how he had traced him to a San Pedro-street lodging-house, the same Capt. Roberts called Oscar out from the hospital department, where he is kept, fully expecting to see a joyous reunion, but he was doomed to disappointment. CONFIDENCE MEN RELEASED.

Nothing on Which to Hold Ross and Crowell.

Ross and Crowell, the confidence sharks, were yesterday released, and without delay took their departure for pastures new. A telegram was received from Chief Crowley of San Francisco last Friday night, as noted in yesterday's Times, which 'said: "If you do not convict Ross, I will send for him." Yesterday about noon another dispatch came from the San Francisco Chief, saying: "Prosecuting witness left town, have nothing else to convict Ross. Hence, all that was left for the Los Angeles officers to do was to release the fellow, and with him Crowell, alias Hood. They were brought out fellow, and with him Crowell, alias Hood. They were brought out into the detective's office at 2 o'clock yesterday afterneon, and after some questioning, which elicited nothing of benefit to the officials, they were turned loose, after having their baggage, which had been secured as evidence and which showed up their schemes so successfully returned to them, when they, grips in hand, stepped out of the police station, and after looking up and down the street and conferring with each other, started toward Broadway on a fast walk, evi-

Cruelties of Norses.

[New York Evening Telegram.]
Servants employed to look after the little folks are, as a rule, so anxious for their own pleasure that they frequently slap their charges into submission order to be free to gossip with their confreres below stairs. This course of action usually takes place at bedtime, and any frolicsome disposition on the part of little "wide awake" is, according to the personal observation of our informant, speedily reduced to a condi-tion of sobbing and sleep, owing to the employment of methods known only to these guardians of the treasures of the practiced on children by their nurses which savor of actual cruelty. If these cases are numerous, can it be possible mothers are unaware of them? Is it that the duties of society so completely take up both time and attention that the doings in the nursery are unknown to the mothers of the little dwellers therein? Motherhood is a far nobler office than social leadership, and the little souls commended to a mother's keeping are greater treasures than the keeping are greater treasures than the diamonds that are the envy of all other women in that circle in, which only the elect move. Therefore, these human jewels should be guarded with a constant and jealous eye, and their caretakers should be chosen with due regard to their mental and bodily welfare instead of selecting at random simply to get somebody who will be capable of keeping the children out of sight and hearing when company is around, by hearing when company is around, by whatever means, fair or foul, they choose to employ.

to be the property of the State and run solely for the interests of the people." solely for the interests of the people." Both of these classes may try to fortify themselves by the example of France. The financiers mentioned will say the French way is the right way, because more than 10 per cent. is earned, whereas, in England, the average earnings are only 4½ per cent. The philanthropists who want State control will say that the people are better.

will say that the people are better served in the French style. But "things are not what they seem."

If the Government is to have absolute control of the railways it is supposed to be, like the postoffice, not for money-making, but for the direct benefit of the people. As to this the contrafy is true in France in comparison with the gen-erality of railroads in America and in dividends and interest no less than $29.613,715, or a little more than 10

This comprehensive system may ulti-mately be saving for the State, but the public loses all the advantage of competition. As an English authority recently said (and I can confirm it by a long per-sonal experience:) "The lines in France are not as well maintained, and are less frequent, and not so rapid as in England." In addition, the real hard laboring people in France, the day-laborers, mechanics, small shop-keepers and farmers, who travel in the third-class, have scant consideration. The third-class passenger cars in England are so good that many persons, able to pay a higher fare take a third-class ticket, so that, within a few years, many of the English railroads run but the first and third class. In France the third-class accommodation is far different

Angeles to San Francisco. By ordinary trains (for the "lightning express" trains don't stop at Arles) the fare is for first-class, $10- for second-class, $14.35. This train does the 482 miles in 16 hours and 57 minutes, and compares well with the 10.40

482 miles in 16 hours and 57 minutes, and compares well, with the 10:40 p.m. train from Les Angeles to San Francisco, which runs over the same distance generally in 22 hours for a $15 fare, plus $2 for sleeping car and to 00 cents for porter—in all $17.50.
But on the American line you get, in addition to a five hours longer ride, a gratis transportation of 150 pounds of baggage, and have the accommodation of a sleeper, toilet arrangements, etc., etc. Now, to the sum total of a firstclass railroad fare ($18) the sum of $6.35 for a fauteut (an arm-chair sleeping arrangement, without sheets, blankets, etc.); or, if you can have a place in the lits-salons (a sleeping berth very inferior to a Pullman berth) you must pay for it the sum of $3.50. Let us take it on that basis, as Americans want the beat. Now, suppose that you have a trunk, or trunks, weighing in all 150 pounds; $6 pounds will go free, but for the remaining $4 pounds you must prepay $4.50. You pay the porter of the lits-salons 50 cents as the lowest compensation. You will then have, in all, to pay for your trip to Arles (the distance from Loa Angeles to San Francisco) $19 plus $9.50 plus $4.50 plus 50 cents, or a total of $38.50. If you go by second class your railroad fare is $14.35, and you pay for the same amount of Baggage as above, $4.50, additional of total of $18.85. I purdown mothing for sleeper because there is no second class sleeper, no wash basin, no water closet or other conveniences as in American second class cars. If you want a sleeping-car (lits-salons.) you must go into a firstclass carriage and pay full first-class fare and all the extras aiready enumerated. So that it is easily seen that in price of railroad ticket and in accommodation the advantage is with American railroads.

The train to Arles that we have been considering takes notalirad-class passenthe comparation of the comparation of the large comparation of the com seilles, and thus are linked together the two largest and most important cities of France—the metropolis, Paris, and the great commercial emporium, Marseilles. Hence it is that we find four of the swiftest railway trains in France and also the largest railway fares. Only one class, the first, is taken by these swift trains. The distance from Paris to Marseilles is 586 miles, and the ordinary express trains, three in number, do it in seventeen and a half hours, but the trains known as "H," "A," "J," and "C" bowl over the 636 miles in respectively 14 hours 17 minutes, 14:41, 15:00 and 15:28. Train "H", "ou will see, covers about thirty-"H," you will see, covers about thirtyeight miles per hour, which is, as my admit, much faster than any Southern stance which wil notl escape attention is the magnitude of the dividends paid by the six companies upon their share capital. To repeat a few of the figures capital. To repeat a few of the figures which we have just given we may recall the fact that in the year 1891 $298, 978, 910 of share capital received in dividends and interest no less than $29.618,715, or a little more than 10 per cent. per annum. This was prima facle a remarkable result, reasonable investors in this country being undoubtedly satisfied if they can secure 4 or 5 per cent. upon the sums which they may place in railway stocks. But it must be remembered that French railway property reposes upon an altogether different basis to that which prevails in England. English railways are freehold property, and unless they in England. English railways are freehold property, and unless they are transferred upon the equitable terms to the State, they will accord-ingly remain forever in the hands of their present owners, their heirs, ad-ministrators and assigns.

The Charity Ball a Brilliant Social Event.

As had been predicted, the first annual charity ball given under the auspices of the Charity Organization Society at Hotel Green Friday night, proved to be one of the most notable social events ever wit nessed in Pasadena. It is safe to say that on no previous occasion, with the possible exception of the opening ball at the Ray mond some few years ago, has an assen mage of such magnitude and brilliancy, representing as it did, the cream of the so representing as it did, the cream of the so-ciety of Pasadena and vicinity, been brought fogether. The fact that the price of the lickets had been fixed at $5 did not keep anybody away, but rather proved an addi-tional attraction, affording as it did an exeillent opportunity to combine pleasure with philanthropy. About one hundred and twenty-five tickets were sold, each admitting a lady and gentleman, so that a conservative estimate places the attendance at 250.

The beautiful ball room of the hotel, which is almost without a peer, was ablaze with light, and odorous with the perfume of flowers—a fit meeting place for such a profusion of female loveliness and grace as assembled there between the hours of 8 and 9, under the escort of handsome and devoted member of the sterner sex. The floral decorations were simple, being confined to the stage, on which were seated the members of Brockway's orchestra, which discoursed the best of music throughout the evening. Near the main entrance Miss Wheaton presented each guest with a hand-painted programme of artistic and varied designs, which had been prepared by several of the well-known ladies of town. At the northeast corner of the room the patronesses stood to welcome the guests. They were: Mines. E. C. Bangs, M. A. Bartlett, C. W. Brown, F. C. Bolt, Jeanne C. Carr, A. H. Conger, C. D. A large audience, composed of Ventura's society people, and also many from Santa Paula and outside places, greeted the Turkish Bath theatrical company last night. All were well pleased, but it is to be hoped some enterprising citizens will agitate the subject of a suitable operahouse. Union Hall will do very-well for public meetings, etc., but the stage is too small to allow for the use of much scenery, while the "make-up" of the actors is too apparent to the audience. The acoustics are also extremely faulty. The only remedy is a brand new hall built for that purpose, which could also be used during "campaign time," or any occasion demanding suitable accommodations for audiences and speakers.

The rainstorm seems to be over for the present and the orange-growers are preparing to pick in earnest. The leaves and ruit were nicely washed by the rain, and the orchards present the most beautiful appearance they have this season. Within a very short time enough of the fruit will have been removed to mar the beauty, and it will be another year before another opportunity will be afforded to see an orange grove in its greatest glory as the producer of the golden globes.

The Riverside Heights Irrigation District began work yesterday upon the tunnel at Box Springs for the development of water Box springs for the development of water for the new district. As the development of water at this place by this method is yetsomething of an experiment, the progress of the work will be watched with interest. It is to be hoped that the district will make a success of the scheme, as it will bring some excellent land under water.

At the Glenwood parlors on Friday night the East Riverside Literary Society re-peated the exercises of the meeting en-titled, "A Night Wi' Burns." The printittled, "A Night Wi Burns." The prin-cipal paper of the evening was one descrip-tive of the times and genius of Burns, by Jamie Boyd., a native of that region in Scotland in which Burns was born, and an enthusiastic admirer of Burns. The paper was interspersed with readings from Burns by Mr. Boyd and others. Prof. Eli F. Brown also presented a short paper on submitted, covering the details of the work from several standpoints, and the comparative table was quite an extensive affair. All the bids were much below the estimated cost of the work, and yet there was quite a range in the prices in several particulars. The lowest bid for the work completed was made by Arthur S. Hem. of the Pacific Clay Company of 10s Angeles, and to him was awarded the contract. The completion of this work will make the sewer system now in the city available for use, "a consummation devouily to be wished."

NO SALOON.

It now looks as though there will be no real, open licensed saloon in this city after all—at least not for some time. A license all—at least not for some time. A license was: granted by the city to Anderson & Beam of Riverside to conduct such a business here, but the lefficient work of those opposed to saloons, in getting petitions against it signed by the citizens, and the highrate of license and many restrictions drawn about the business, have caused the applicants for the saloon license to withdraw from the field. In the mean time, the dens have it their own way.

Now, that we have pleasant weather again, and the roads are drying out, many riding parties start out each day bound for the beach or the surrounding hills. There are many ladies in these parties, and it is noticeable that the practice of riding astride, and wearing a divided skirt for a habit, is gaining among them. This style of riding is not only much safer than the usual practice of riding on a side-saddle, but it is much easier for the horse. Livery men complain that a horse let to a lady who rides in the old-fashioned way, invariably returns with a sore back, and saddlers unanimously declare that riding astride is the only proper method for men or women. Two very handsome saddles have recently been made to order by a leading manufacturer here for the use of ladies who ride astride.

A local buyer for an Eastern house has closed a contract for 600 tons of lima beans, raised and owned by Antonio Schiappa Pietra of Ventura county. This is tha last lot of limas of any con-sequence in the hands of the growers, and it is predicted by knowing ones that this sale will have a tendency to advance the market price very materially; some experienced business men declaring that they will probably go as high as 3 cents.

The price paid for this large lot is not stated. They will probably go East via Redonde.

Tom Morris to Enter the Free-for-all Foot Race at Chicago.

Progress--A Pleasant Reception-The River Again Within Its Banks,

SANTA ANA A very pleasant reception was given at the residence of Mrs. E. D. Cooke on East First street, Friday evening, in honor of Mrs. Cook's daughter, Mrs. Charles Holden of Grand Rapids, Mich.

Mrs. Cooke and Miss Cooke were assisted by Mrs. Ray Billingsley, Misses Nell Frazier, Ruley Stone, Laura Warner and Amy Dye.

The parlors were decorated with pepper boughs, palms, smilax, calla lilies and roses, while the dining-room was festooned with smilax and adorned with violets. Dainty refreshments were served to the hundred or more guests present, and a most enjoyable afternoon was experienced by all.

WILL ENTER THE FREE-FOR-ALL. Tom Morris, the Orange county peat land sprinter who has twice defeated the seventy-five yards foot racer of the world, James Quirk of Canada, has concluded to enter the free-for-all 100-yards race in Chicago either in July or August. Morris has sent a draft for his first payment of the entrance fee, and will leave himself for the Windy City up by the lakes some time in June. The entrance fee is $200, and, as it is expected that there will be a score or more entries, the purse is likely to be quite handsome: Morris is confident he can win the purse, and many of his friends here are just as confident. It is believed here that he is the fastest foot racer in the world.

will not be a go," said a representative cit zen to the Tinks representative yesterday. "If the town of Orange can raise a bonus of $1000 for a cannery there, and staid old Anaheim $400,000 or over for a cooperative beet sugar factory, it does look as though there should be no trouble what ever in raising a small amount like $2000 or $2500 for a cannery here. There need be no anxiety about getting thoroughly responsible and experienced cannery men to take hold of the enterprise if the citizens have will be the market held of the second sec here will but manifest their good faith in the matter by raising a moderate fund to assist in the starting of the factory. I have already clipped the article from THE TIMES first mentioning the matter of raising a fund to apply in the establishment of a facory and sent it East to an acquaintance of nine, who is acquainted with several ex perienced cannery men, and perhaps others have done the same thing, so that I have no fears but what experienced and competent men will be easily found to go ahead with the enterprise by the time the citizens have done their part."

Interest in the establishment of this needful entesprise is growing, and in all probability a public meeting will be held in the near future, at which the necessary steps will be taken to secure the factory. CHINA WEDDING.

The Great Sale in Full Blast-Goods Going a Song-Everybody Excited-The Stock Rapidly Dwindling

The great sale, "at less than auction prices," of the Pitcher & Gray Co's stock of clothing, hats, gent's furnishing goods, etc., at South Spring street, is drawing crowds clothing, hats, gent's furnishing goods, etc., at South Spiring street, is drawing crowds of buyers, notwithstandir g the unfavorable weather, and it is the testfitony of everybody who has made any sort of investigation that retail buyers never before had such a picnic. The stock was a very large one and composed of goods of a much superior quality to those handled generally by the trade, and embraced clothing and furnishing goods for children as well as for men. All these g ods have been marked down indiscriminately, away below what they cost An estimate was made of what they would probably bring at auction, and then a discount made from that to offset the probable expense of an auction sale. One can buy a better outfit today at the Pitcher & Gray Co.'s sale for 15 than he can g-t anywhere else for 346, and the "proof of the pudding" is in trying it.

HAVE YOU GOT IT?

If You Have, Don't Be Foolish About It-The Matter is Serious.

Catarrh has been humorously dubbed the great American disease, and the statement, however correct, is generally accepted, that every other adult in America has it. That it prevails extensively in all parts of the country, and is a thing to be regarded seriously and with alarm, no sensible per-son doubts for a moment. It is troublesome to the person who has it, and distressing to It is singular that until the discovery of this Mexican remedy, lately introduced to the public by its wonderful cures in Los Angeles, there has been no specific for catarrh. So far as is at present known, Simp-son's Mexican Catarrh Cure is the only thing that has ever brought about an absolute and permant cure. It is handled by a responsible company, and is within the reach of everybody. As rapidly as possible branch depots for its sale are to be es tablished in New York, Chicago, and other cities, and a campaign against the "great American disease" will be try. For the benefit of readers who may be personally interested, it may be stated that leigh Mexican Catarrh Cure Company is in the Los Angeles National Bank building tion room, 8, directly over the bank.

IT WAS TORTURE.

Contrast Between the Old and New Methods.

the Way a Patient Improperly Treated for Catarrhal Trouble Describes

The $5.00 Rate for All Diseases Extended One Month.

One of the many well known residents of this city whom a reporter has visited dur-ing the past week, and who has testified in no uncertain terms as to the superior skill and the rational scientific treatment of Dr.

ing the past week, and who has testified in no uncertain terms as to the superior skili and the rational scientific treatment of Dr. De Monco and associates, had a rather shocking story to teil of his previous experience in trying to obtain relief from his catarrhal trouble.

"Why, they burned my nose out," he said. "I went a iew years ago to doctors who widely advertised and caimed to be specialists, and my disease was so much increased by their treatment that I thought in never could get any relief. It seemed as if they were running red hot irons into my nose and throat, and the pain and torture I suffered under their treatment was terrible. I don't know what their treatment was, but I know it nearly killed me, and I know a number of friends who were tortured in a similar manner, and who did not receive the least particle of benefit. In fact the disease was increased by the barbarous methods employed."

The fiesh creeps at the thoughts of the violent methods that are leagued by the old style catarrh "speca ists." The most heroic treatments are given to the helpiess sufferers—strong acids and electrodes are used to such an extent that the mucous membrane is destroyed—the fine, delicate portions of the nose are burned out, and when an operation is to be performed the patient is subjected to the most desperate wrenching, tearing and twisting.

The great charm of Dr. De Monco and associates method of treatment is its mild and soothing nature. It is the pailistic method as opposed to the heroic, It is a process of constant methodical cleansing, healing and soothing of the membranes foul and irritated by the poisonous catarrhal secretions. Catarrhis both a constitutional and occasion neither the slightest pain or disconitort. They relieve the nostrils, and occasion neither the local manifestations usually occur, must be kept clean from po sonous accomulations. The sprays and applications used in healing, soothing and curing the affected parts by Dr. De Monco and associates are effective, pleasant, and occasion neit

The $5.00 per Month Rate not only applies to the freatment of Catarrh, both local and constitutional, but to all diseases as well.

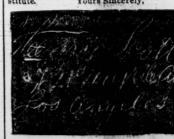

MR. HENRY SCOTT,

Retired Business Man Residing at 721 Myrtle Avenue, Los Angeles, Cal., in Conversation with the Writer, Says:

"I have suffered with catarrh in its wors form for fourteen years. At first it began with ringing and roaring sounds in my head with partial deafness in both ears with ringing and roaring sounds in my head with partial dealness in both ears, and at times entirely deaf in my left ear. My eyes ran a stream of water, and nose discharged freely. Great quantities of mucous dropped into my throat, making it very sore. I had sharp shooting pains in the chest; they would dart through my body and lodge undermy shoulder biades. Gradt a y the disease which at first affected my head and throat extended until my entire system was undermined. I suffered terribly with catarrh of the stomach and indige atton; after eating my food lay in my stomach like so much lead. I couldn't came to this climate in search of relief, and while I have improved some ways, catarrh has always been my main trouble and anionavance. I have spent a great deal of time and money on doctors and patent medicines for the treatment of this disease, but also no avail.

"After one month's treatment at the De Monco Medical Institute I have been releved of all these annoying symptoms. I sleep well, I cat well disease my food throughly, and no longer have that heavy distressed feeling in my stomach. In fact, I am practically a well man. I would recommend any person suffering from this disease not to besitate to place their case with the month of the distressed feeling in my stomach. In fact, I am practically a well man. I would recommend any person suffering from this disease not to besitate to place their case with the month of the distributional treatment these specialists administer gets right at the seat of the disease. I felt better from the very first treatment. There's no use taking, I've tried every patent medicines are on my seating around the local and constitutional treatment of Dr. Ee Monco and associates. I never heard or saw any thing like it before. It acted like a charm in my case.

"Why, would not go back to the pains and aches I have suffered from catarrh for the treatment of catarrh. I had received more ben fit from one month's treatment at the De Monco Medical Institute for the treatment of catarrh. I and at times entirely deaf in my left ear

CATARRH.

Catarrh is often regarded by the patient as a cold in the head, and he often expresses his astonishment at his remarkable tendency to contract a fresh cold. Indeed, he declares he is scarcely free—from one cold before he takes another: and he is always exceedingly careful. It is also a matter of surprise to him that the cold always seems to settle in the head and throat.

At times many of the symptoms of catarrh may seem to abate, and the patient is led to hope that the disease is about to wear off; but another class of symptoms soon appears, and he learns to his borror that, instead of recovery from the disease, it is changed in its character and extended to the throat. A sense of weariness is sometimes felt in reading, speaking or singing, hoarseness at times occurs a sensation of dryness is sometimes felt in the throat, or it appears that some foreign substance, as, for instance, a hair, obstructed the throat; there becomes, a sense of languor and fatigue, the breath lessens upon a little exertion, a short, backing cough, a peculiar sound in clearing the throat, a feeling as though there were not more enough in the chest to I treathe; these and other symptoms occur atter-the disease has made considerable progress. Then it is a time when con-sumption is about to begin its dreadful work. Up to this point the progress of the disease may have been slow, and the patient may, in extressing his confident hope that it will "wear off." declare that he has had catarrh for years and has not seemed to become much worse, and trust he will "by and by" recover. But this delusion is the grand error which has peopled our cemeteries with consumption consumption.

We have nad little to say to you during the past week except on the topic of shoes, which we thought very appropriate in view of the frequency of J. Pluvius. The old maxim "Actions speak jouder than words" will be very forcibly illustrated if after reading our address today you will come into our stores tomorrow and see it logically

We have inaugurated a new system whereby every department in the house is kept separate and distinct at if it were an exclusive store of its own. Having completed our stock-taking, we have taken up the stock in each department, not at what it cost us, or at its value, but at a reduction of thousands of dollars in each so as to proseed upon an equable basis and hold the management responsible for their departments and show a profit one year hence. By this arrangement the stock in our house in one day has depreciated in value $25,000. Aside from this we have the greatest values in merchandise, generally speaking, that we have ever experienced in our business career. Our business is shooting forward daily, and nothing can check it, for we are satisfied that the qualities are not excelled and our prices are not equalled.

Dress Goods.

You will find on display in our show windows a line of choice novelties in Iridescent Silks. The price of these goods have been $1.50 and $1.75 a yard. We place this line on sale just to show you the quality and character of the goods we keep and the prices we quote. These silks cost over $1 a yard to manufacture.

$1.00 A line of novelty Dress Goods, among the finest that the French weaver car produce. You will flud a fair sprink. ing of them on the table just as you enter the main store. Examine them. If you don't find them a recommenda tion for our dress goods, department.

50c German Damask Table Linen, 60-in. wide. We would like a comparison made between this and any 50c table linen that can be bought in this town.

614c We will let out 100 pieces of the best quality Indigo Blue Dress Prints and 100 pieces of the best quality of Dress Prints. These goods at present market prices are quoted by mill agents at 6 %c and 7c a yard.

$2.50 This is a Lace Curtain 81/4 yards long and almost 5 feet wide. We advertise it simply as a sample of what you will find in our drapery department.

Millinery Dept.

You will find everything here cut away below one-half the original prices. Felt Hats that we sold for $2.50 you can buy for $1. Felt Hats that we sold for $1.50 you can buy for 25c. Fancy feathers of all kinds have been more than cut in half. Our new trimmer is now attending the opening of Imported Pattern Bonnets, and shortly we will show you the finest line of spring millinery that was ever brought to Los Angeles.

Ladies' Corsets.

We want to call attention to

Her Majesty's Corset. It is said to be the best in the world, ranges in price from $2.75 to $5. We carry the very best line of medium-priced corsets manufactured in the United States, and ranging in price. from 50c to $8.85. This department is in charge of a lady who is practical in her art, and has manufactured cor-sets for a number of years. In ladies' underwear we carry the lines of Ypsilanti, Lewis Knitting Co., and the best productions of medium-priced goods manufactured in the United States. We are closing out some wool garments at 50c that sold as high as $1.80; they are Jersey ribbed, high neck and long sleeves.

You will find the greatest values in shoes in Southern California in our department.

$2.00 We will show this spring the finest line of Hats shown by anybody in Los Angeles. We are going after the trade upon the basis of carrying the best goods and selling them for the least money. We will carry a full line of Stetson's celebrated Soft Hats. The line we advertise today is the newest spring shape "Fedora" block.

Men's Furnishings.

You will find a line of 4-in-hards and Teck Scarfs. We are assured by the manufacturer that these goods cost him over $6 to $10 a dozen to make. They come in crepe, fancy tie silks, ex-ceptionally well-made, and greatly under value. $1,00 Nobody in need of Men's Underwear should miss this value, it is full-finished natural gray wool shirt or drawer; it cost 85c to full-finish this garment. It has no seams and cost $1.75 to manufacture; is usually sold at $2.50 a gar-ment. It is certainly a ridiculously ab-surd price, and if you don't appreciate this value you are not in want of un-

Personal Recollections of the Good President.

Gen. Adam Badeau Describes Him as He Knew Him.

Scenes at His First Inauguration in Washington.

At the White House Making Officers of the Army-Introducing the Wife of Gen. Grant at a Public Reception, Etc.

Contributed to The Times. Abraham Lincoln was born eighty four years ago today, on February 12,

I first saw Mr. Lincoln at the New York Academy of Music in February, 1861. He was on his way to Washing ton to be inaugurated. Most of the Southern States had already seceded, and the whole country was in a state of intense excitement. New York had been overwhelmingly opposed to the Republican candidate, and probably three-fourths of the fashionable people who filled the operahouse were his political enemies. But he was the President-elect, and it had been declared that his inauguration would be resisted by Southerners, and New York meant to be loyal to the Union. Mr. Lincoln had been the target of more than ordinary abuse and ridicule, and was personally disliked and even despised when he entered the large stage box on the right of the grand tier, the entire house rose while the orchestra played "The Star-spangled Banner." I was a young Democrat then and had voted for Breckenridge. I was with a party of men and women bitterly opposed to Re-publicanism; but not one of them dreamed of remaining seated. It was an unusual thing for an American audience to rise for any man, but this antag-onistic, exclusive company stood in onistic, exclusive company stood in honor of the tall, ungainly Hoosier who looked down on them from his box white Il Ballo in Muschero was playing. The scene and the act had more significance than we knew. They showed not only that New York would subordinate politics to patriotism, that pride of position was nothing in comparison with pride of country, but that this plain man of the people would lead this plain man of the people would lead the greatest in the land, and even polit-ical enemies would follow him in the mighty conflict that was so near.

Ballo in Maschero, too, the opera which the head of the State is assas sinated at a gathering for pleasure! Lincoln's own fate was foreshadowed in more ways than one that night in February, at the opera.

I next met him at the White House in April, 1862, as bearer of dispatches announcing the capture of Fort Pulaski. I had served as volunteer aid-de-camp without rank or pay, during the siege and bombardment, and carried a letter from Gen. Hunter, who commanded the attacking force, recommending me for Hay, the President's secretary, procured me an early interview—before the 8 o'clock breakfast—and I was ushered into the room next to the Cabinet chamber. Mr. Lincoln sat before the fire, with one of his long legs thrown ove the arm of his chair and the other coiled and twisted in some extraordinary fash-lop, as if there was more of it than he knew what to do with. He asked me about the siege and the fort, and I told him what he wanted to know, he listening attentively, and inter-rupting only to extract some bit of information. I said nothing about my application until he had heard all he wanted, then I handed him my papers. He looked over them wearnly, as if Le had such things thrust at him every hour in his life, but it was early in the day and he was not yet exhausted; be-sides he had been interested in my He looked over them wearily, as if Le story, so he said: "Well, what do you want me to do?" in a worried tone that told of his cares and anxieties and made me almost sorry I was adding to them.
"What do you want me to do?" I saw what to you want me to do? I saw that I must be quick and concise, and simply replied: "I want to be made a captain." He took a pen and wrote on my recommendations: "Let Mr. Bedeau be made a captain. A. Lincoln," and handed them back to me. "Show this to the Secretary of War," he said.

I thanked him but he was already or I thanked him, but he was already oc-cupled with a different paper, and I left the room without another word. Of course the order was obeyed. I or course the order was obeyed, in went to Mr. Stanton, who received me at once when he learned that I came from the President; he sent me to the Adjutant-General, and I left the war office a captain in the regular army.

I did not see Mr. Lincoln again until March 1864. Gen. Grant had just been placed in command of all the armies, and was in Washington on his way to Culpepper. He spent a day or two discussing his plans with the Government, and Mrs. Grant remained at the capital with him. I was then a member of Grant's staff, and accommended the capital with him. I was then a member of Grant's staff, and accommended Mrs. Grant on the first wist above. member of Grant's staff, and accompanied Mrs. Grant on the first visit she made to the White House to pay her respects to Mrs. Lincoln at one of her day receptions. It was a Saturday afternoon, and there was a great crowd. Mr. Lincoln stood by the side of his wife, and the visitors bowed first to him. I was in my uniform and on crutches, because of a wound, and he looked at me almost tenderly—of course without remembering that he had ever seen me before. When Mrs. Grant's name was called by the officer who announced us, the President either did not hear the name or gave it little attention, and Mrs. Grant would have passed on without any more notice than any other stranger. But I pression lighting his ugly, noble features, asked after the General; and turning to Mrs. Lincoin, said: "Mrs. Grant, my dear!" Then he gave me his hand and a final approving glance. I have been present more than once when Gen. and Mrs. Grant were received by European sovereigns, descendants of a hundred kings, but not one of them showed a more gracious sense of what was due a distinguished guest thanthe rail-splitter from Illinois.

The next time I saw him was under very different circumstances. It was in the summer of 1864. He had gone down to City Point on a steamer to down to City Point on a steamer to visit Gen. Grant, but had not an-nounced his coming. The headquarters camp was on a high bluff on the bank of the James; the tents formed three sides of a square and the fourth overlooked the river. The President landed at the foot of the bluff and made his way up the steep bank entirely alone. Grant and one or two of his staff were seated outside of their tents when a tall, gaunt figure appeared on the bank clad in black and wearing a high black hat. We had not een such a costume in months, and no body recognized the stranger. We thought him an agent of the sanitary commission, or perhaps some civilian come to ask a permit to visit the army. The sentinel halted him, and there was delay of a minute or two before the President of the United States was allowed to enter the camp of his greatest general. Granthimself first exclaimed

Why, it is Mr. Lincoln," and advanced to meet him, while the other officers renained standing. mained standing.

The next day the President was taken to the front and rode among the camps of Gen. Meade's army. There was a review of the colored troops, and after breaking ranks the negroes came rushing up about him, they hailed as their liberator, for every one of them had been a slave, and looked upon Abraham Lincoln as the man who had set them free. The simple creatures growded ree. The simple creatures crowded around his horse, they laughed and cried and sang, they threw up their arms and danced, they touched his saddle and his clothes, they kissed his hand, and called him "Father Abraham," "Massa Lincoln," and the President dent uncovered and rode bare-headed among his colored soldiers—in Virginia. Atter this Mr. Lincoln often visited Gen. Grant. He always slept, and usually took his meals on his steamer, but passed many hours at the headquarters. sometimes joining the group around the camp fire, sometimes sitting with Grant in his tent or riding along the lines with him, sometimes remaining in camp and reading dispatches as they came in from the different armies. He was very accessible to the staff officer as very accessible to the staff officers at such times, ready to talk with any of them, making minute inquiries in regard to military matters, and even dis-cussing political affairs on occasions; but never committing himself unwisely, never saying a word that he could afterward have wished unsaid. No man could be more cautious or more reticent

At one time he remained several weeks, and I got to feel that I knew a good deal about the character of his mind. His penetration, the broadness of his views, the sagacity as well as the wonderful fairness of his judgment, amounted to intellectuality; while his abounding charity, his humility, tem-pered by a certain dignified conscious-ness of his position and the importance of his decisions, his tender heartedness, his kindness to the humble were remarkable. He never spoke hars ly even to an enemy; he was merciful to criminals and deserters. He was, indeed, in his almost divine words, full of "charity for all, with malice towards none." And when I thought that this "charity for all, with manice towards none." And when I thought that this man was the but of every vulgar wit-ling North and South, that the enemy had christened him the "baboon," and millions of Northerners and Buropeans had christened him the "baboon," and millions of Northerners and Buropeans maligned and affected to despise himin spite of myself I was reminded of Him who, when He was reviled, reviled not again, and when buffeted and spit upon yet permitted Himself to be called "King of the Jews."

In darling I had alwayssupposed that was absolutely essential to hear the rhytmh of the music in order to keep the time of a waltz or a polka. To be sure, they had an orchestra on the dancing barge, and for a time I regarded that as peculiar, for few, if any of the party could hear the strains.

emergencies; but this was from the in-nate superiority of his nature, not the acquired grace of society. His jokes offended the taste of many who ad-mitted his greatness, and his awkward bearing was the counterpart of one phase familiar to his neity features phase familiar to his ugly features. But though the mask of plainness the great soul shown out at times, the great mind perhaps more rarely, the great

Up to this period I had not formed an exalted idea of Mr. Lincoln's ability, but when I saw him in this undress of his character, in this familiar, every day sort of intimacy, hearing him dis cuss the greatest affairs with Grant for hours and chatting with a lieutenant by turns; when I saw him receive Sherman and Sheridan and Meade as well a Grant as their master, meeting Seward and Stanton and other Cabinet ministers, who sometimes attended him; men themselves of incontestable mark; Senators, too, and foreign ministers— and showing himself easily the superior of them all, not only in station, but in of them all, not only in station, but in that undefinable something that be-speaks innate authority—I recognized the fitness of this Western lawyer to sit in the chair of Washington in an emergency greater than Washington ever knew.

He was at City Point when Grant finally moved his armies out in that campaign which ended in the capture of Richmond and the surrender of Lee. I remember being present when Grant handed him the orders he had prepared for Meade and Sheridan and Ord, and heard his inquiries as to the meaning of this presen or the object of the of this phrase or the object of that movement. He offered no suggestion, far less order, leaving every military matter absolutely to the commander of his armies. But his comments were terse and showed a keen appreciation of the situation. On the morning of the 29th of March Grant started in person for the front. He and his staff went by the military railroad that led to Meade's headquarters, and the President accom-panied us to the station. His son, Rob-ert Lincoln, a young man of 21, was of the company, a captain on Grant's staff. Mr. Lincoln shook hands not only with his on and Gen. Grant, but with the other officers. "God bless you, gentlemen," he said, as the train moved gentlemen," he said. as the train moved away, "you have my best wishes for your success and safety, all of you." I shall never forget the sad, grave face, full of kindness, but yet weighed down by responsibility, looking out at us yearningly and fading away in the distance as we went on to end the war.

He did not return to Washington, but remained on his steamer to be near/the armies, and was at City Point when he would have passed on without any more notice than any other stranger. But I repeated: "Mrs. Gen. Grant, Mr. President." He instantly stooped till his tall figure almost touched Mrs. Grant's shoulders, took both her hands in his, and with a pleased and warm ex-for nearly a year. The troops were moving, news was coming every few moments from some corps or another, secessionist women and negroes stared at them from the streets or the neigh-boring houses; and there the happy President and the successful General sat for more than an hour discussing the wonderful present, and its effect upon the future. How little they dreamed what the immediate future would reveal?

Soon arrived dispatches that made it necessary for Grant in person to start in pursuit of Lee, and mounting our horses we bade the President good-by. He rose to salute us as we turned toward Appomattox, and it was at this auspicious moment I took my last look at Abraham Lincoln, wrapped in the very halo of victory. Before the very halo of victory. Before the month was past he had joined the great company of heroes and martyrs who died for country and freedom. ADAM BADEAU.

WEATHER FORECASTS.

Foster Tells of the Coming of the Next

Storm Wave. [Copyright, 1898, by W. T. Foster.] St. Joseph (Mo.,) Feb. 11, 1898. My last bulletin gave forecasts of a storm wave to cross the continent from 11th to 15th, and the next will reach the Pacific Coast about the 16th, cross the Western mountains by close of the 17th, the great central valleys from 18th to 20th and the Eastern States about the 21st.

The storm will be most severe west of the Mississippi about the 18th and 19th, and very cold weather for the time of the year will precede it, cross-ing the continent from the 14th to 17th.

A cool wave will follow this storm, crossing the Western mountains about the 19th, the great central valleys about the 21st and the Eastern States about the 23d. This will be the last of the winter storms in the Northern States, and the weather will become warmer very rapidly, forcing the crop season from that condition usually called late to the other extreme called early spring.

The Famous Forty Immortals Maneuvering for Position.

How French Academicians are Elected to Office.

The Great Literary Lights of France as "Wire-pullers."

lecent Election-Zola Three Time Defeated-Victor Hugo Defeated-The Mazarin Palace, the Home of the Immortals.

Special Correspondence of The Times. Paris. Jan. 28 .- Every now and then in walking about Paris, sometimes in the libraries, sometimes in the book shops, sometimes along the boulevards, you meet a man with nothing particularly striking in his appearance who seems, nevertheless, to attract universal attention. Every one turns to look at him. Men whisper mysteriously as he walks by. Women look at him admiringly. And yet, for the life of you, you fail to understand what there is about the man worth looking at.

He has an austere face, his body is bent at the shoulders, he is dressed hours to receiving the various candidates who, great men though they are, already famous and rich, present themselves with fluttering hearts at the doors where they knock so often in vain. The Immortals make it a point to receive these anxious guests with bland and encouraging manner. The trouble is they are apt to encourage all alike, which does not mean very much, and it has become a proverb that a man who bases his hopes on these perfunctory promises is twining a rope of sand. Nevertheless there is a strict etiquette in the matter, and these ceremonies and rather humiliating calls must be and rather humiliating calls must be made today, as they have been made for two hundred or three hundred years past, ever since Cardinal Richelieu founded the Academy in 1635,

At last the day of election comes, after all this talk and hope and effort, after many jealousies and heart burnings. The Academy assembles in the somber hall of the Mazarin palace set aside for important deliberations. Its walls are lined with marble busts of Immortals who have passed away and Immortals who have passed away, and over its huge fireplace hangs a painting of Cardinal Richelieu, who looks down, smiling, upon the scene. His crimson robes of office brighten the dark wainscoting of the room, and his wonderful eves furnish inspiration to his disciples. eyes furnish inspiration to his disciples.

The Mazarin palace, which is the home of the Immortals, stands on the southern bank of the Seine, just opposite the Louvre. is a burden to themselves and all their friends. If it were not the custom it would seem undignified for the most famous literary lights to be thus running about from house to house, from one person to another, using such influences as they possess with each to further the great end in view, and, for the time being, turning themselves body and soul into literary wire-pullers. Many of the carrier of the c ered with green palm leaves, the symbols of their glory. On their bald heads they wear the regulation three-cornered hats, also embroidered with palm leaves of the same color. They file solemnly out upon the platform where the speeches are made, and look for all the world like characters in opera-bouffe, or discusses he the contrast between so ridiculous is the contrast between their rather gaudy make-up and the melancholy expression of their faces.

Meanwhile the hall, which is constructed like a theater, and can hold about five hundred people, has been stuffed to the point of suffocation with two or three times that many representatives of the upper crust of Paris society. This is a great social event, and the ambassadors of many countries and the ambassadors of many countries. and the various social lions are present at it as regularly as at the first nights of a new opera.

Then come long-winded speeches, mostly eulogies on the literary world in general, and the Immortals in particular. The new candidate reads in a monotonous voice what will make a whole supplement of the Temps of that evening, five or six columns in close print, and very few people except him-self ever do read it. It is almost invariably unqualified praise of the great man whose place he has been called upon to occupy. Everybody applauds tremendously when it is over, and, if the truth must be told, because it is over. The fash-ionable people of Paris enjoy seeing the time-honored ceremony, but they do despise being bored.

The last academician who was elected. Pierre Loti, rather surprised people by departing from the rule of saying only pleasant things. He said what he thought and said it very emphatically, his speech being as a matter of fact a vigorous attack upon the realistic school of Zola and the psychological tendencies of Paul Bourget. This was last April when the literary naval officer succeeded to the chair of Octave Feuillet. One of his statements which was not less commented upon than his severe criticisms was the cool admission that he did very little book reading. He even went so far as to state that at the time of his election to succeed Octave Feuillet, he had only read two of that master's novels, and those when he was such a young man that he had almost forgotten

On this occasion Mme. Carnot was present, and many of the most distin-guished people in the literary and social

One peculiar thing about these speeches at the Academy is the fact that the public hall where they take place has wretched acoustic properties, and this taken in connection with the fact that the Immortals have usually weak voices and are rarely given to oratory, results in very few persons in the audience being able to hear what is said. Some years ago one of the new candidates, I believe it was M. Pasteur, hearing of this unfortunate peculiarity of the hall, determined to investigate in advance, and actually went there some days before his speech for a sort of rehearsal. With his scientific mind the eminent savant soon discovered that he could obtain better results by addressing his voice in the direction of a small marble statue of Immortality. And when the day of his reception came he did this with good results. There was some sort of sound focus in that direction which helped the audience to hear.

Since then it has been usual for the new candidates to follow his example and address their remarks to the little marble statue instead of turning directly toward the audience. The effect of this, although good in so far as it im-proves the hearing, is decidedly peculiar. One of the bitterest enemies of the academy is Alphonse Daudet, whose novel published some years ago and en-titled "L'Imortelle," was a direct atbusiness quietly without the least disposition to assert himself or intrude upon other people. He is advanced in years, with hair gray or silver white, that is, if he has any hair left, for very the main structure rises a massive dome, which is one of the land marks in Paris almost as prominent as that of the Invalides. In front of the palace is the level, whose hands on the aftertack upon a body of old fogles, as he regarded them. The book made much of a sensation, and, of course, ruined Daudet's chances of ever being received into the number of the elect. As to that, however, he seems to be more than indifferent, his serious conviction being that the French Academy has done more harm than good to the cause of French letters. There is a regular term applied to the burning desire to be received among the Immortals. It was invented by Victor Hugo, who characterized this form of desire as the "green fever," which, he said, was a frequent sequence to the "black fever." By "black fever" the author of Les Miserables meant the craze for dabbling in printer's ink, which marks the beginning of every literary career; whereas the "green fever" was so called on account of the green palms mentioned already as being characteristic of membership

Special Correspondence of The Times. CHICAGO, Feb. 6 .- "Size," says a Chlcago newspaper, "is the main feature of the California exhibit. The ambition seems to be to produce exhibits which, from their very bigness, will put an obliterating shadow on all competitors. When once the matter of size is settled, attention is given to such minor affairs as tasty decorations and artistic arrangement."

"Except the Illinois building," it is careful to say, "the State building of California is larger than any other on the ground. It looks like a fortress rather than a place of peaceful rendez vous; it is an exhibit of the solidity and vastness of the old Spanish Mission, rather than of architectural beautya sort of 'topographical map' of a State rent by fathomless chasms and bristling with mountains towering to dizzy heights." This is one of the prare occasions when Illinois feels flat, yet it seems to be oblivious to the fact that it has not placed on the Exposition ground a single building that is American in appearance, and that has not been heralded as the biggest of

The tunnel of the mining department, plastered with clay to make a picture of a real tunnel, is large enough to show visitors real mining work; the cars receiving their loads, the elevated tracks, the church the hosting, and leading and the chute, the hoisting and loading apparatus, the stamping machines, the ore yard for the storage of silver and gold ore, evidently make a list of large things with which the State of Illinois will find it hard to compete. The city schools are beginning to feel the pressure of the past 400 years, "Children and teachers are urged to prepare work at home and in the school for the World's Fair to such an extent that we hate the very name of World's Fair," is one outcry. "Give us a chance to teach common school branches. Parents and press cry out against the poorly educated pupils that are being turned out of our public schools. Do they think the teachers are not aware of it?" is another. "German is pros-pering at the rate of $125,000" writes another, "attacking all the grammar and half the primary grades." "Sewing is another," and of mud pies, Odelia Blinn, M. D., writes vigorously. "Children of the muddy age are not wise enough to obtain knowledge of the tenacious stuff to last them until they can utilize stuff to last them until they can utilize it in adult life." "If children must be amused instead of instructed, they should be accompanied by their nurses." "Sand heaps would serve them better at less than 40 cents a hundred pounds. Little grains of sand have a habit of sliding away from sizable animalcules, while clay or mud has an uncomfort-able habit of attracting various germs of disease to its unctuous sliminesss, and all manner of death-dealing bacteria, as the rotund mud pie passes from one pair of hands to another, so freely tranferring scarlet fever, measles and other diseases, while the entire community wonders where and how their children catch disease."

of the mounted specimen after the skin is on before the touching up of the eyes, nose and mouth is done, and this takes time. And after that the hide must be thoroughly groomed.

So much for the mounting of the in work. If grouped, the animals must be given life-like attitudes. If the moose is placed in a swamp scene, the repro-duction of this in a realistic way takes considerable study and labor and time. Taxidermic work calls for extraordi-mary patience. The preparations to accomplish what has been described takes months, years of hard and incessant study. Live animals must be observed, if possible, in every conceivable po-sition. Unlike the artist who paints one position and one side of his subject, the taxidermist must remember that his mounted animal is to be looked at from all points of view. Days must be spent in studying the anatomical construction of the animal, and in making sketches of the different portions of the body until every detail is mastered. The importance of all this thoroughness is evident when we consider that

The Man Who Wears the Ties.

The Man Who Wears the Ties.

I feel a sad compassion for the man along the road,
For I do not know the sorrow that he carries with his load;
He may be some erring son, whose bitter longing homeward flies;
Remorse may fill the bosom of the man who wears the ties.

When the dreary night comes on, and in a shelter rude and bleak,

He herds with homeless comrades, viler far than tongue can speak,

When he draws his ragged blanket up to hide his bleary gyes,

He may think of boyhood pleasures then, this man who wears the ties.

When the sighing winds are toving with when the signing winds are toying with his rusty, matted hair,

Which lies upon his grimy brow, once baby-white and fair, baby-white and fair, he may dream it is an angel, with his mother's form and guise—
In prayer above her darling boy—the man who wears the ties. And perchance a passing cloud may drop a tear upon his face, And waken him from such a dream, to see his own disgrace, And perchance the tears unbidden come, and so the beggar cries, Could you feel no throb of pity, for the man who wears the ties?

God help us all and keep us in the straight and narrow path, To deal with all in charity, nor visit sin with wrath; And aid us all to turn our brother's face toward the skies, God knows he needs a helping hand, this man who wears the ties.

When a man has started downward, every hand is raised to smite;
Every ray of hope is smothered by a pall of blackest night;
No one knows the hopeless struggle, save the man who vainly tries—
And fails; and then we know him as the man who wears the ties.

Yosemite, I told you last week something of the vonderful beauty and grandeur of Yosemite, of all the valleys in the whole wide world the fullest of wonders and of beauty.

The Sierra Nevadas have been called "the Alps of California," and well they merit the name, as some of their peaks are covered with perpetual snows and hide their heads among the clouds. How this wonderful valley, lying in the very heart of this mountain world, was formed, geologists—those who study the formation of the earth, and who read its history in its rocky strata—are not fully agreed, but J. D. Whitney, an eminent geologist, thinks that it was caused, ages ago, by the "bottom of the valley sinking down to an unknown depth," leaving its great rocky walls uplifted, some of them rising more than a mile above the valley's floor.

But I will tell you today a little more of Mirror Lake, of which I wrote last week. If you could see what I saw there, more than fourteen years ago, I am sure that you would enjoy it more than all the fireworks that you ever witnessed.

It was in the summer of 1878 that I was visiting the valley. One evening our party received an invitation from the gentleman who lived in the pretty cottage upon the border of Mirror Lake to be present at a grand illumination of the lake, an invitation which we were very glad to accept.

The moon was up as we left our camp, its light falling in floods of silver on meadow and river, while the peaks to the east stood in somber shadows, and the northern walls of the valley were but just tipped with its light. We rode up the banks of the Merced in a path-way of moonbeams. It was fine in the saddle on such a night as that, and my spirited bronco cantered gaily as if he enjoyed it as much as myself. But by and by we left the moonbeams behind us and entered a valley of shadows. At the the entrance to the Tenaya Cañon the colossal walls of the Half Dome loomed far skyward between us and the moon's light. All the vale wa in shadow, only far overhead the gran-ite face of The Watching Eye, and the round North Dome were silvered and fretted by the moonbeams.

Beautiful Mirror Lake lay in dark ness, brightened only by the starlight or as the gilded top of Mt. Watkins or the glowing crest of Cloud's Rest showed faint reflections through the darkness, and, as from the balcony over hanging the lake, lighted up by a long line of Chinese langers and the many lights from the windows of the cottage, were sent out glimmers and arrows of light over its beautiful surface.

That was a gay and happy party gathered from the hotels and elsewhere in the valley, and at 9 o'clock the huge bonfires were lighted. They were formed of large stacks of pine knots and boughs, which had been heaped up around the lake, and while burning how the shadows fied before them, like an army stealing silently away. The shore was a circlet of fire, and Mirror Lake stood out like some old temple of the sun with its worshippers of fire, and the reflections in the water were like long, gilded, fire-paved aisles, leading off somewhere into an unknown world. Then, as the breeze touched the flames, they looked like burning altars, and the tall, columned-trunks of the trees re-sembled majestic priests, and the green foliage on the shore, gilded by the firelight, waved like shadowy curtains, all silver fringed beside the lighted altars. It was a picture which would have seemed like fairy land to my girls and boys, as it did to us. I have seen a great many fine displays of fireworks in different cities, but note that anywhere consider the but none that anywhere equalled this beautiful illumination of Mirror Lake, where two worlds seemed to meet, one above and the other beneath its waters above and the other beneath its waters.

Then came the ride upon the lake.
How can I describe it? The boats were filled and glided over it, the waves rippling like solid lines of silver along their sides. Some of the guests had flutes and guitars, upon which they played, and the echoes caught their notes as they went floating over the water, mingled with the voices of song, and the granite rocks took up the sound and the granite rocks took up the sound and flung it back from every crag and peak till all the air seemed alive with music. It was indeed like a dream of

By 10 o'clock the moon was up bigh enough to look over the crest of the Dome. The fires died down and the beautiful moonlight took the place of the glare and glow of the dying bon fires, and soon the flaming altars and alsles, the fire-columns and arches, and the tall priests all vanished, and we stood in the real world again, guarded by the granite hills, the blue sky over our heads, the beautiful lake asleep at our feet. The canon stretched away in the darkness, almost overarched by pines and cedars. There was no sound in the world beyond our balcony.

clear water, fed all the summer by the snows of the Sierras, and filled with speckled trout, and I could see the golden sands of the river's bed lying far below the surface, for, though the river was deep and its current swift, its waters were as clear as crystal; and all about me were the wonderful heights of the valley, its domes and spires and columns, carved out of the solid rock. I have climbed its dizzy trails, going up and up, as if into the very skies; I have looked down from its lofty heights, so far above the valley that the cattle looked like mere specks upon its bed. I have seen it at sunrise, when a million birds were singing for joy within its trees, and at noon, when the sunlight was reflected from its rocky walls; and at night—how beautiful it was in the full moonlight with the stars above it and the music of its water-falls sounding everywhere; and I have seen the rainbows spanning its falls and have crept under the rocky lip of Yosemite Falls, behind its curtain of waters, and everywhere I found grandeur, such as I am sure my children would love to see. I do not wonder that the Indians loved it and dreamed that the Great Spirit dwelt somewhere near it, and that the happy hunting grounds of the blest could not be far away. E. A. OTIS.

MOUNTING A MOOSE.

How a Taxidermist Prepares a Spec imen for Exhibition.

The Difference Between a Stuffed and Mounted Animal Described by Clarence E. Ed. words,

The smaller the animal the less the attention given to these details.

The "making of the skin," as the skinning of the animal and the preparation of the hide for mounting is called, was done in the woods and camp. The skull, with the antlers, the leg bones and the hoofs were also preserved. We will suppose, further, that accurate measurements were made of the moose after he was shot. the moose after he was shot.

Now the taxidermist takes the work of mounting in hand. First, he constructs a frame or foundation, based on the measurements made of the animal in the woods. This frame consists, in the beginning, of a board, two inches thick, cut in the shape of the body of the moose. To this is bolted a heavy piece of wood

Now the artistic eye of the taxidermist is put to the test, for the statue is approaching completion and must be made to conform exactly with the measurement. On a bright August day in . 1844 the schooner Margaret, William Thomas master, laden with a cargo of mer chandise from Holland was proceeding slowly up the British Channel toward ne port, Bristol,

She was a small trading vessel, 120 ons register, carrying a crew of four men with the captain, mate, cook, carpenter and two boys, one of whom was myself. Six months before I, a youngster of fifteen, had left my home at St. Helena and was now serving my first term of apprenticeship with Capt. Thomas, to whom I had been bound for four years. All that day the weather had been glorious. Toward sunset the clouds began to gather in heavy masses to the southeast, and a little later a heavy breeze sprang up from that direction.

As darkness came on, the wind increased, blowing a strong gale, and it blew all night. morning dawned dense fog set-down over the vessel and completely obscuring everything. Soundings were taken, but the Captain seemed to get no knowledge of our whereabouts. When daylight came the sea had changed color. This proved us in shal-low water. The lead was hove. The soundings were only twelve fathoms.

"Wear ship!" shouted Capt. Thomas, in a thundering tone.

The vessel was then under such small sail that she had not way enough to stay her. As she answered her helm and paid off bringing the wind aft, high land Suddenly the fog lifted. At the same

Suddenly the fog lifted. At the same instant the wind changed to the southwest, blowing harder. A cloud of canvas flew into the air. Looking up I saw it was the jib. The vessel lost what little headway she had and drifted heavily to leeward.
As the fog cleared toward the land we looked eagerly in that direction and to our dismay and horror we saw heavy breakers beating so close on us that there was no room in which to wear the ship round.

The Captain at once gave orders to clear away the anchors. The mate went forward with an ax and cut the lashings of the one on the port side.
As soon as the cable had been cut the starboard anchor was cut adrift and thirty fathoms of cable run out. The order was then given to "hold on." As this was obeyed the port cable broke. The schooner immediately swung around, bringing all her weight on the starboard cable. The latter unable to withstand the strain, parted, and then we were left entirely mercy of wind and sea.

Notling less than a miracle could save us. It was impossible to see whether we were driving onto a sandy beach or onto the rocks. The suspense was short. A tremendous sea came relling toward us. Striking us with terrific force, it lifted us high on its crest and carried us forward toward the breakers and then drove us with a crash onto the sandy bottom, and at the same instant down tame the foremast, taking with it the jibboom and bowsprit, and all disappeared together into the sea.

Wave after wave washed over us in quick succession. The mainmast was split, and the noise made by it as it was beaten about by the gale was deafening the clay is wet and soft. So, as soon as the coating of moist clay is on, the skin is again drawn over the statue and At last one sea, heavier than all the others, lifted the ship bodily and then dashed her down with a giaut's strength on to the sand. The bottom was stove pulled in shape, the sides smoothed and the muscles made to stand out just as they do in the live animal.

All the measurements are now veriin, and she began rapidly to fill with The captain ordered our one life-boar fled, and then the work of sewing the skin begins, as shown in Fig. 5. The hoofs, which have already been would set out for shore and after land ing himself he would send the boat back for the others. We had no alternative we were compelled to submit. The captain, mate and three of the men sprung over the side, took their places and pushed off. As the little raft rose and fell in that frightful sea t seemed doubtful if they reached the hore.

Dumb with terror I had watched the whole proceedings. I could only cling to the sail and, by the sheer strength of my hands and arms, save myself from sea swept over us. I strained my eyes now until it seemed as though they would burst, to follow the movements of that little boat on which our lives depended. She seemed but a mere speck upon the waves. Suddenly she rose to a surprising height then disappeared altogether. The next moment I saw the men strug-gling in the water. The boat was broken into pieces, for the fragments were brought out to us.

Every one for himself, was now the cry throughout the ship. How far from shore we were I could not tell. We had to take our chances. Although a good swimmer, I knew that in such a tremendous sea I should be powerless. There was, however, but the one thing to do.

Raising my hands before me and pressing them firmly together, I drew a long breath, then sprang from the schooner's rail down into the water beneath. When I rose to the surface I tried to swim. It was impossible, as I had foreseen. I was like a child in the grasp of a monster. The waves tossed me up like a plaything and carried me ne up like a plaything and carried me n—I could not tell how or where.
Suddenly a great black object loomed up before me. It was a part of the wreckage. I tried to ward it off, but I might as well have tried to ward off the schooner itself, for the sea lifted me up and dashed me onward, and the great mass struck me a heavy blow over my eyes—a flash of lightning gleamed, then all was darkness and a blank.

How long after I could not tell, a strange sensation came creeping slowly A low murmur of voices reached my

ar. I was bewildered and benumbed, but soon the truth began to dawn and I knew that wherever I might be I was not dead. Powerless to speak or move, I opened my eyes—which were large and dark—and fastened them upon the faces around me. With screams of fear all turned and ran, leaving me there

Not in the least understanding the cause of their fright, I closed my eyes and endeavored to recall all that had happened. Little by little each event came back to my mind up to the moment when I was struck by the floating couraging observation.

"Where am I?" I faintly inquired, and made an effort to rise but could not. Every bone in my body ached and my limbs were so stiff and cold that as I sank backon the straw the tears welled up and overflowed.

"Cheer up, Jack, yer'll be all right in a day or two," said the mate, as he again bent over me. He felt my limbs, and finding none of them broken, thought sincerely that a few days' rest would set me or my feet again.

would set me on my feet again.

I learned that we had been wrecked

Some of the people saw me as I was be-ing washed ashore and had hauled me in. Supposing that I was dead, for I bore every appearance of death, they had carried me into the barn and left me while they attended to others.

The schooner was rapidly breaking up. Her masts were gone, her bottom stove in and the cargo was fast coming

After giving me these details the mate left the barn to obtain assistance in removing me to a more comfortable place. In a short time he returned with three men. I was carefully lifted from the floor, placed upon a stretcher and carried into the farm house.

As we were about to enter an old woman, her face glowing with kindness and sympathy, came to my side and said something to me in Welsh. I could not understand a word that issued from her pression of her eyes.

She guided the men into a warm, comfortable room and I was lifted from the stretcher and placed on the bed. The pain was too great for my endurance and I fainted.

For several days no one supposed I would live. All that pity could do was done for me by those kind Welsh people. Day and night they watched by my bed, and, although all communication was made by signs, I felt that I was in good hands. But at the end of two weeks I was able to report to Capt. Thomas, who was staying a short dis-tance away, and in a few days I was again on the sea, feeling no bad result from my first shipwreck.

RED AND BLUE SNOWS.

Contributed to The Times. The red and blue snows which have fallen have almost always been in inaccessible places, where they were only discovered by scientific men.

The rosy snows of the Alps have been thought by many to be due to the peculiar action of the sunlight which cast a red glow upon what was in reality a white surface.

But in 1778 M. de Saussene, the great meteorologist whose Alpine researches made him famous, found some red snow and analyzed it. He found that the coloring matter was vegetable. Probably the farina of some flower. A beautiful blue snow fell in Norway in 1847. It was found upon analysis to be caused by a large admixture of cobalt. Blue snows have also been analyzed which contained as a coloring matter the seed vessels of plants.

Capt. Ross, upon his return from the Arctic regions in 1818, told of the "crimson cliffs." These were great These were great red snow. His story cliffs covered with red snow was listened to and believed by many to be only another traveler's tale, but to the scientific men he brought bottles filled with some of the melted suow. At first it looked like clouded port wine, finally it settled and was found to con-tain round particles of some vegetable substance, probably the seed vessels of a sea plant. They were of an oily nature, and when crushed gave a paint-like substance of an Indian red color. M. de Saussene has also analyzed red snow, which contained as a coloring matter tiny Alpine lichen.

Attention Southwest!

The southwest portion of Los Angeles city is growing rapidly and will continue to do so. Every one that visits that section is delighted. Right in the central location of the southwest we have the Charles Victor Hall tract. This magnificent plot of land is to be placed on the market at prices and on terms within the reach of all. Lots that have been hald at $1000 each you can have at much reduced prices. To begin with, all who wish fine home locations should view this tract located on West Adams street. The large villa lots consist of a frontage of $0x148 and 150 feet deep to 14 and 20 foot alleys: avenues 80 feet wide. Pepper trees will be planted in front of all the lots every fifty feet. In between these will be planted a choice and rare variety of the gum imported from Algiers and, resembling the india rubber tree, and between these will be planted a choice and the total conditions of interest. In place of hoding and thereby, getting a vast increase in value, the conclusion has been arrived at to live and let live, and give all a great opportunity for investment in realty, as well as the most attractive spot for a model home.

Not very far from this property lots are selling as high as $180 to $2000. The march of the city is southwest, and shortly these lots will bring high prices. It is not necessary to say much about this location: it speaks for liself louder than words. Parties not residing in the city and sending their orders to the undersigned will have the best selection we can make for them at the time, and any party so buying without first seeing this property, so as to give all an equal chance, can have this opportunity. And upon investigation if they find they do not wish them, they can have their money returned any time within 90 days after date of sale, and will so state on the receipt given. About every day of late we have had some one wish us to set a price on all this property. Now is your chance. We fully believe you are getting it at retail at about the same rate we co

AND THE PAIN STAYS CURED.

For sale by GODFREY & MOORE, 108 S. Spring st., opp. Hotel Nadeau, Los Angeles, Cal.

One of the Eagle bird's valued correspondents, who is "afeared" to sign his name, seems to have struck it. He says the way to get around the "holocaust" corner at First and Spring streets, is to cut New High street through to First, thus permitting the glut of humanity to escape the aggregation of hoss cars, and grip cars, and trolley cars, and policemen, and switch-men, which clogs up the avenues of traffic at that dead man's corner. Now this is an idea worth thinking about. Here grows, day, after day, a city that, unless the Eagle's foresight has some kind of a gig in it, is going to has some kind of a gig in it, is going to be a metropolis of a heap more magnitude than it is now. Real estate on First street, between Spring and Broadway, already away up in the pictures, will, a little later on, be as expensive to cut a chunk wide enough for a street out of, as it would be to carve a way through a United States mint.

The street car companies own the Spring and First street corner, or at

Spring and First street corner, or at least have a mortgage on it, and are about ready to foreclose. The public which walks, and drives, and trundles which walks, and drives, and trundles baby buggies, and tamale carts, and peanut layout, may yet escape the Juggernaut if the powers that have the authority to do things and but seldom exert it, would go right straight at it and condemn a right-of-way through from Franklip street to First, or even clear through to Broadway. clear through to Broadway.

The Eagle bird knows what he is talking about in connection with this subject, for right under his beak, day after day, he sees the cavorting street cars go larruping around that deadly corner, barely escaping buggies filled with women folks or delivery wagons loaded up with delights of the epicure, and before there are any more good people killed in the jam lets get together, you human chaps and us Eagles, and relieve the strain by and us Eagles, and relieve the strain by opening up another channel for travel and letting the street cars have that corner for their very own, and be blowed to 'em!

Then shall the delighted populace rise up in glee and shout: "There is a Mayor and a Common Council with a sube onto it that is all wool and a yard

"There is an aggregation of office holders that act as though they wanted to earn a redlection by deserving it. There is a host of fellow-citizens holding down situations in the government of the 'beautifulest' city of the 'beau-tifulest' country that is left out of doors over nights, who certainly love their fellow humans and proposes to keep as many of them as possible from getting ground up by the car wheels." Now let's get at this and do some-thing about it.

Everybody with sufficient sense to come in when it rains knows that the condition of things at the Nadeau Hotel corner is a constant menace to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. As the city grows things at that corner will constantly grow worse. The mo-tion made some time since to change the cable line to First and Main did not meet with a second, and presumably nothing will be done in that direction.

The railroads in the streets will not get away from Mahomet, therefore, let Mahomet get away from the railroads by cutting a new avenue for traffic into a byway which has no cars on it. Who will be the first live statesman to rise movement under way and earn the everlasting plaudits of the people of this beautiful city which I adorn, as well as the encomiums of an Eagle bird which loves to see the proper thing done at the proper time. thing done at the proper time.

Speaking about streets, this First street hill over back of the Board of Trade still continues to mar the land-scape in spite of the innumerable shrieks of disgust thereat which have gone up from this perch for cons of ages.

Isn't it enough to tire a saint! Isn't it enough to make an Eagle bird yell himself hoarse at a community which will sit supinely by and see a magnificent thoroughfare blockaded by a slice of land that a few able-bodied shovels could carve a hole through in no time?

The pumpkin-growers of Cahuenga and Hollywood still go on climbing the Temple street grade or going around 'steen miles via Seventh street to get into town, when nature has made a natural entrance into the heart of the city if only the lower powers. of the city, if only the logy powers that don't do anything would get a shovel onto themselves. Here come the enterprising denizens from the lands of freeze, winter after winter, but that First-street hill still continues spectacle of itself, to the disgrace of the town and the disgust of the people who cannot help themselves.

Every twice in a while some Councilman gets out under this perch, looks up at that hill, and declares he is going at that hill, and declares he is going at that hill, and declares he is going at that hill and declares he is going that it and heavy the state.

right at it and have the thing leveled down so people can travel over it, or know the reason why.

Then he suddenly gets tired, and that is the last anybody ever hears of it, except when the tireless Eagle bird utters his shriek about it.

Do cut down that hill Mr. City Core.

Do cut down that hill, Mr. City Governors, and make yourselves a monu-ment that will exist as long as the roses bloom in the gardens of the City of the Angels.

And when you have it finished, and and when you have it finished, and the joyous people go meandering to and fro out where the tomatoes grow all winter, and the green pea of commerce knows no rest from work, then will the Eagle adorn you each and every one with garlands of rhetoric. He will paint your virtues in gaudy language and squint at your other shortcomings with the two eagle eyes of him.

He will scream a pean of praise for you individually and collectively that will be worth at least twice the price of admission.

Divine will.

Do not let us dwell too much upon the mistakes of life. Let us not waste time in deploring its losses. Let us not mourn too deeply over unrequited love or broken friendships. Let us not give too much regret to that which makes life bitter for us, for these are but the wormwood which God uses to wean us from folly and the snares of time. It is because God loves us that He thus disciplines us; because He would bring out the strength of character that is latent, and the courage that is sublime in its strength, and the blessed faith that never faiters, and that makes the soul "even as a weaned child."

We cannot wholly escape sorrow in this life, but we can find comfort in the thought that business streets see the way the new-comer is splicing steel girders and things together, and laying broad and deep the foundations of brown-stone structures, how they must hate them-selves almost to death! structures, how they must hate themselves almost to death!

Do you ever walk around the northeast corner of Main and First streets, with its motley array of tumble-down shanties, inhabited by dealers in castoff garments, "sheap clodings," junk and bilge water, without having your gorge rise at the silurianism of the people who own that magnificent piece of property? How the Eagle bird longs for another Stimson to turn loose in that part of town, and raze those shanties and rattle-trap adobes!

How he—the Eagle bird—would rejoice to see a sky-scraping heap of steel and stene climb into the atmosphere down there! With what a yell of glee would he see the sturdy workmen commence to rip up the roofs of those rat-infested rookeries to make way for the march of progress, which is meandering along in other portions of the town in seven-league boots!

what of the amphious order to enjoy sauntering during some of the days of he past week. What did our tender feet think of a California winter's rain on Thursday, for instance? Was there anything of a shirking character about it? Ah, this great golden State is generous in whatever she does. As I sat indoors watching the rain fall I thought of the bounteous harvests that later will spring like magic from the earth. The leagues on leagues of growing wheat, the yast fields of tasseled corn, the heavy-laden vineyards with corn, the heavy-laden vineyards with their purpling grapes, the great emerald alfalfa fields, the glowing beds of ripening berries, and the numberless orchards rich with all kinds of fruit—the orange, the lemon and the lime; the loquat, the guava and the cheremaya; the almond, the walnut and the olive; the luscious peach, the golden Japanese persimmon, and the rosychecked apples. All these will flourish under the magician's wand of these heavy rains, and soon this whole wide semi-tropic land of ours will be like a horn of plenty. The fig tree will yield its fruit, tempting at the figs of the Orient; the clustering bananas will grow heavy in the sun, and in sheltered places the pineapple will hang temptingly ripe and inviting to the tered places the pineapple will hang temptingly ripe and inviting to the taste. The damson and the prune will crowd the swaying leaves upon their boughs, and wherever in the gardens and fields the eye rests there will be something to tempt the lips./ Harbin-ger of plenty, O blessed rains, we bid you welcome!

I saw two men meet upon the street the other day as the rain was pouring down its benediction. They were evi-dently old friends, who had been sep-arated for a time, and, though it was raining its nardest, the umbrellas were thrown back so that each could get a thrown once so that each could get a look at the other's smilling face, and the hand-shaking was as lusty as a strong wind among the palms. As they stood there, I was reminded of a paragraph I had been reading that morning relative to the various forms of salutations which prevail among diffaces. tion which prevail among different "In Carmana, a province of Persia, a

"In Carmana, a province of Persia, a singular nustom prevails. When they wish to show peculiar esteem they open a vein in their arm and present the blood as it flows for their friend to drink. This is more objectionable than the rough pulling of noses indulged in by the jolly Eskime of certain tribes when they meet to have a comfortable gossip, with the thermometer thirty degrees below zero. A kick of the leg is not generally considered as a courteous method of paying one's respects to a guest, nor do we snap our fingers in the faces of those we desire to entertain. guest, nor do we shap our ingers in the faces of those we desire to entertain. But the Phillipine Islanders when they are in a particularly amiable mood, practice both customs. There are natives of the South Sea Islands who testify their delight at meeting a friend or guest by bending their bodies very low, placing their hands on their checks and placing their hands on their cheeks and raising their left foot in the air."

There is everything in popular senti-ment about these customs, and they may be made to express just what that dic-tates. But I think that I prefer the good old-fashioned hand-shake to them all.

Poor old Ben Butler, I remember him as I used to see him years ago in Wash-ington in the days just after the war. He was not as genial as many men, but many stories are told in Washington of his wit. Frank Carpenter in speaking of it says:

"His brain was as quick as a flash and of it says:

"His brain was as quick as a flash and he had one of the most sarcastic tongues that ever cut a soul or cracked a joke. I heard a story last night of his remark at the close of a Congressional speech of John A. Bingham's. Butler did not like Binghan, but the speech was an able one, and at its close the House was wrapped in silence and you could have heard a pin drop any place in the chamber. The Congressmen were ready to burst into applause, when Butler, cocking his queer eye, said in a stage whisper:

"I always did like that speech!"

This meant, of course, that Bingham had but one speech and that he had spoken it many times before. It effectually settled the applause.

Ah, well, that is all ended. The great brain is at rest, and the drooping eyelid has closed forever over the sightless eye under the coffin lid.

Speaking of prominent men at Wash ington, let me tell a little anecdote that I read a few days ago in one of our exchanges. The story runs thus:
"When Senator Lamar, who had just married a young wife, was appointed Secretary of the Interior by Mr. Cleve-land, his bride spent a week house-hunting, and finally found what seemed to be a suitable residence for a Cabinet officer. She drove to the Senate, of which Mr. Lamar was still a member, to tell her husband the news of her dis-covery. His first question was:

"What is the rent, dear?" "Seventy five hundred a year."
"The Senator lapsed into deep thought and the young wife safd, rather nerv ously:

:Do you think it extravagant?'
'It is not that,' returned Lamar, slowly, 'I was wondering what I should do with the other $500 of my salary.'"

I have been mentally sauntering I have been mentally sauntering among the newspapers since this deluge commenced on Thursday, but of what I read I will let these little anecdotes of Lamar and Butler suffice, though I felt when I laid the pile of papers down, through which I had gleaned, as if I had really had a glance at the whole world and the race.

A CHICAGO paper takes the liberty to suggest that if, by any possible contingency, Hawaii should want another queen, the claims of Mrs. Victoria Woodhull-Martin be considered. And then there is Mrs. Mary Lease, and possibly, too, Mrs. Doctor-Major Mary E. Walker.

RARELY, if ever, perhaps, has a more thrilling calamity occurred at sea than that which the great liner, the Pomeranian, of the Allen Steamship Company, encountered on her trip from Greenock to New York, the telegraphed report of which is published in this morning's Times. It only took one huge wave of the sea to dash the Captain, some of the officers, many of the crew and several of the passengers to eternity, while the great steamer itself barely escaped destruction.

Some members of the California Legislature have queer ideas about the province of a State government. A few days ago a representative introduced a bill to prohibit Japanese immigration. He was probably unaware of the fact that the power of regulating commerce and immigration is one of the specially-reserved functions of the National Government. Again, Senator Ostrom has introduced a bill making it a misdemeanor to hire a horse and buggy from a livery stable and not pay the bill. If it should be a misdemeanor to beat a livery stable, why not a misdemeanor to fail to pay the butcher, the stick-maker? Does ker and the cand Senator Ostrom want us to return to the old law of imprisonment for debt?

In promulgating statistics to show why the number of superior judges in this county should not be reduced from six to four, the committee of the bar made no comparisons with other counties. That is the only way we can tell whether it takes more magistrates in district, etc., are prepared by proper proportion to population to transact authorities in each case and, the legal business of this county than properly passed and approved, are rein other counties of the State. San ported and returned to the County Francisco city and county, with a population of about 300,000, and certainly as much litigation in proportion as we have, gets along very comfortably with twelve Superior Judges. Los Angeles county has a population of a little over 100,000. With one-third of the population and litigation of San Francisco ve ought to be content with one-third as many judges-which is four.

A CORRESPONDENT Of THE TIMES SUGgests a way for circumventing the rapacious Chicago hotel-keepers during the World's Fair which is worthy of consideration by people of moderate means who expect to visit the Fair next summer. He says:

How feasible the plan would be for a mber of persons, be their number few more, to buy a tent and rent a site it close to a railroad station, any where within twenty miles of Chicago. Their daily fare to and fro would be trifling, and, with canned provisions cheap as they are now, they need not pay an unreasonable price for board. Half a dozen couples could club together in that way, and, by taking turns at staying with the tent, they could see the great show at very moderate ex-pense. Single men, farmers, workingmen and others with small means could need not cost more than 50 cents to $1 per day. The extortionate charges of hotel-keepers need scare no one, especially any one from the Pacific Slope and Territories, for we all know some-

'The Ohio plan-'value land, once in ten years'-would hardly do in a growing country. As for numbering lots consecutively, that would help in some places, and give rise to new complications in others."

It is interesting to note how the work of assessing and collecting taxes in a populous county can be performed so satisfactorily, and, at the same time, so cheaply. The same work in Los Angeles county costs five or six times as much money, and is probably not so

In the matter of the vacation of streets in the Alpine tract, Pasadena, the petitioner asked for a postponement of hearing, which was granted, and the time reset for Thursday, February 16. As to the disposal of garbage from the County Jail and other buildings, Supervisor Hay moved that a suitable box or receptacle for the collection of the same be provided to prevent dogs and cats from strewing it about the grounds.

The same member also moved that Mr. Watson be instructed to remove gates at Signal Hill, on the Redondo road, and the fence across the extension of Hill street, on the Anaheim road.

The motion was finally withdrawn, after some little discussion, in order to scertain exactly the county's rights in

Other members stated that the price of pauper burial was fixed at $12, and, course, the board did not desire to exercise any partiality. It was also suggested that if all of the city underakers would send in their addresses no further oversights would be made.

The minutes enrolled in the road book for the past two months were then read

In regard to feeding the county prisoners, for which Sheriff Cline presented bill at the last meeting, S Hanley reported recommending that in the future the rate be fixed at 25 cents per day for each person. For some time past and during the former administration it has been customary to allow 85 cents, and the Sheriff's bill had been prepared on the Sherin's bill had been prepared on the same basis. Supervisor Hanley explained that he had made inquiry and found that the city prisoners had been fed at a much lower rate, and believed that a saving could be effected for the county with due economy.

As a matter of fact the records of the city police department show a decided diminution of the 35-cent rate.

Before the cooking was done in the prison the city made a practice of letting the contract with outside restaur ants for the feeding of its charges illustrate, for a period of nine under the old management the city paid for 37,255 meals at 12% cents meal, making an average cost per of 25 cents for each prisoner-for of 25 cents for each prisoner—for those who are not worked receive but two meals each day, which has proved to be entirely sufficient and satisfactory. For this period the city paid $4656.85; now for an equal period since the city began to do its own cooking the cost was $2523.49, making an actual saving of $2183.86 over the old arrangement. During the month of arrangement. During the month December last 3518 meals were serv in the City Prison at a cost of $273.46. Under the old practice of the 12 1/2 cent rate the cost would have been $439.75. There is scarcely any difference in the fare furnished at the city and County Jail, if anything the former is the better.

It was upon this showing that Supervisor Hanley based his justifiable belief that there was a wide margin left for

Even the reduction of 10 cents per day on the fare for each prisoner, while working a saving to the county of several hundred dollars per month, was shown even to leave the cost considerably above the city rate. Efforts will be made to secure special rates over the Terminal road, and all churches, socierequested to send delegates. Representatives from all the leading Los Angeles churches, from the W.C.T.U., the Friday Morning Club, the Woman's Suffrage Club, from Mrs. Averill's and Mrs. Galpin's classes, will be in attend-Mrs. Galpin's classes, will be in attend-Mrs. Galpin's classes, will be in attendance. A feature of the parliament will be the discussions led by Mrs. Kate Tupper Galpin'a woman of such marked ability that she has been selected by May Wright Sewall to lead the discussion of "Woman in the Pulpit" at the National Woman's Congress in Chicago next May. next May.
Prof. Keyes of Throop University has invited the parliament to visit the university during the intermission hours, between the morning and afternoon

The officers of the parliament are Mrs. D. G. Stephens, president; Mrs. Frank Gibson, secretary, and Mrs. Lucy S. Blanchard, treasurer, in place of Mrs. Judson, resigned. The ladies wish it distinctly understood that the parliament is entirely non-sectarian, and on this account the treasurer voluntarily resigned in order that another denomination beside the Unitarians might be officially recognized.

The parliament will open at 10 a.m on Wednesday, and Los Angeles dele gates should go out on the 9 o'clock Terminal train. The following is the omplete programme: Wednesday, 10 a.m.: "How to Get the Most Out of the Parliament"—Mrs. Kate Tupper Galpin, Los Angeles.

CHICAGO HOTEL RATES.

What Will Be the Cost of Living in That In answer to the many inquiries from boards of trade and similar bodies concerning the alleged plan to demand ex-tortionate prices for accommodations in Chicago next summer, Maj. W. Marsh Kasson, at the request of the Director-General of the World's Fair, has pre-pared the following report from the bureau of public comfort:

This bureau has been established by the World's Columbian Exposition to cooperate, through its hotels and rooming departments, to the best of its ability, with the citizens of Chicago for the comfort and protection of visitors, to secure for them suitable and desirable lodging at fair and reasonable rates.

The management is keenly alive The management is keenly alive to the fact that thousands of visitors will e deterred from visiting the city less they can be fully assured on this point, hence every effort is being made to realize satisfactory results in this diection.

Inquiries were sent out some time ago to householders having furnished rooms to let to learn, as far as possible, prices that would be expected therefor, and eral average quotations received in re-ply, to cover accommodation for over 16,000 people in the best part of the city lying between North avenue and Seventy-ninth street.

Price of rooms per day without board: Single room, single bed, one person,

Double room, double bed, one person, $2.12; two persons, $2.70.

Double-bedded room, two double beds,

two persons, $3.50. Double-bedded room, two double beds, three persons, $4.15.

Double-bedded room, two double beds, four persons, $5.50.

There certainly does not seem, according to these figures, to be any indication that citizens of Chicago will demand excessive rates for the accommodation of visitors to the exposition, and they can be relied upon to sustain the good reputation of Chicago for fair and liberal treatment of its guests. One publishing house has a pamphlet now in press containing a list of over ten thousand places in the city of Chicago thousand places in the city of Chicago where furnished rooms can be had at moderate rates. The prices given above do not include large first-clas hotels nor prominent new buildings in course of erection in the vicinity of Jackson Park. Many mischievous rumors alleging the likelihood of high prices and extortion generally have been originated by persons interested in outside boarding-house schemes, some of them apparently irresponsible and even fraudulent. The great mass of visitors will doubtless prefer the quiet and economy of furnished rooms such as alluded to, and apartment hotels, ar-ranging to take their meals from day to day wherever it may suit their convenience. It is estimated that from 50,000 to 100,000 people can be $0,000 to 100,000 people can be served daily with meals within the exsition grounds alone, while the num r of hotels and restaurants is con stantly increasing.

LETTERS TO THE TIMES.

The Alleged Ohio Flan.

Los Angeles, Feb. 11.—To the Editor of THE TIMES.] Having read the articles in your paper on the recent occurrences in the South, I would like to relate a fact, without comment, which came under my observation. At the outset, I will state that I have never lived in the South, and that by inheritance and marriage alliance my sentiments are Republican. Early in the eighties, in a town in Ohio

my sentiments are Republican.

Early in the eighties, in a town in Ohio of some eight thousand inhabitants, largely made up of the best class of Germans, the person of a little German girl was outraged by a negro. My father, when he came from his office on Friday, remarked to my mother: "From the feeling in town, I am afraid there will be violence, if the negro is found." Saturday he told my mother: "The negro has been caught, and is safely lodged in the prison at the City Hall." Sunday afternoon my parents drove to a neighboring town to see a sick friend, leaving me with my grandmother. The alarm of fire was given, and I rushed to the street to learn where it was. I heard a great commotion in the direction of the City Hall, where the engine was kept, and stood waiting to see it pass. Instead of the fire company I saw a crowd of citizens, and in the center was the guilty negro. Around his neck was a rope, the end of which was swung by a powerful megro, a porter at the best hotel in the town. The mob, unmasked, marched to the edge of the town and lynched the negro, many of the best poole of the fown—men women and chilsbest hotel in the town. The mob, unmasked, marched to the edge of the town and lynched the negro, many of the best people of the town—men, women and children—witnessing. All day carriages passed to and fro to the scene of the lynching. My parents, learning of what had transpired in their absence, drove rapidly home, my mother's anxiety being relieved, only when I told her that I was not carried away in the excitement to witness so fearful a scene. The body was not cut down until Monday, the tree afterward being made into canes and sold as mementoes to the citizens of the town. A Boston daily commented: "The citizens of a town in Ohio recently passed a Sunday closing law, and then amused themselves on a Sunday afternoon by lynching a negro." C. C.

TWO HANDSOME BALL DRESSES.

From Our Regular New York Fashion Correspondent.]

Here are two handsome ball dresses, that on the left being an exquisite costume of ruby velvet, with ostrichfeather trimming. Its construction is extremely simple. The skirt is cut in the usual bell-shape, with a moderately long train, and is lined with silk. At the edge, instead of the ordinary bala-yeuse, it is surrounded with a broad band of lace insertion laid on quite plainly. The upper part of the skirt is sewn on to a yoke band, and gored to distinctly outline the hips. The bodice is perfectly tight-fitting, and fastens under the arm invisibly with hooks, although the lining is hooked down the center of the front. The left side of the lining, where the bodice fastens—that is to say, at the shoulder seam and under the arm—is provided with a broad band of velvet, so as not to show any gaps. The darts in front are not made in the ordinary way, but are carried to the top of the but are carried to the top of the bodice. There are three of these long darts, in order that the material may set perfectly plain and close to the figure, an effect that cannot be overestimated in the case of velvet, or any other clinging plain material. The collar is formed of light green or yellow ostrich feathers, and is fastened with a bow of the same colored ribbon.

Balloon-shaped sleeves and a girdle of antique silver or coins with all around complete the costum

The other costume is a lovely ball toilet for a young girl. It is of crimped crepe, white stripes on a pale, pink ground, and is accordeon-pleated so that the stripes lie quite close together and the dress itself is very narrow. The princess underdress to this costume is of pink satin, satinette or silk, to which the upper dress is fastened in such a manner that both can be seen simultaneously. There are double bal-loon sleeves and long tan-colored suede gloves. The ribbons at the waist are gloves. The ribbons at the waist are fastened back and front with large DALPHINE. rosettes.

Flocking By Herself.

[Stockton Mail.] Mrs. Lease was so disgusted with the action of the Populist legislators of Kansas in the recent election of a Inited States Senator that she has an nounced that she will withdraw from the party.-[Exchange. Vhile the Democrats are joining in a glad,

While the Democrats are joining in a glad, triumphant lay,
And Republicans preparing for the future's bloodless fray;
While the Populists are telling of their gains or of their losses,
And Cold Waterites are weary with the bearing of their crosses:
While the thousands urge the thousands to action and to strife,
And the tramp of gath ring masses sound along the fields of life.
Dear Mrs. Lease, disgusted with parties using pelf,
Is flocking, sadly flocking, only flocking by herself.

She is flocking, sadly flocking; ah, yes, the hen is on;
With lineaments distorted and with visage wierdly wan,
Never heading how the thousands are hurrying to and tro,
She sees with sad indifference the people come and go;

She sees with sad indifference the people come and go;
She hears the voices calling, but her shriek is never heard,
While she wishes she were like the men—could use a cussful word.
Disgusted, sore with politics and greed for sordid pelf,
Dear Mrs. Lease is flocking, sadly flocking by herself.

County Educational Associa The February meeting of the Los Angeles County Educational Associaion convened yesterday at 10 a.m. at the High school. There were about fifty teachers present, and the first half hour was devoted to business, after which Prof. E. P. Rowell of Redondo read an excellent paper on examina-tions. The 'after discussion was opened by Prof. C. E. Hutton. As there was not sufficient time for all he merchant turns to the public for his support; the public are his friends; they hold the means that give life and character to his busi-

-if this is so, why should a merchant deceive his friends; why should he advertise to do something he has no intention of doing—would you employ a clerk who would de-liberately deceive you—why will you ask your clerks to deliberately deceive a customer, a friend of your business—a merchant employs clerks to build up his business; he pays for newspaper advertising; he thinks out a policy to catch trade, and when they come to his door he disappoints them; he deliberately falsifies his advertisement and expects his employees to help him out in his lyingthe average clerk will not do this-if the merchant will not tell the truth, the clerk, if he does not prostitute his honor, will evade the question, and in this way work an injury to the business through the method employed by the proprietor-a good advertiser is a truthful one-honorable, upright business men who know the power of printer's ink are generally truthful advertisers; when a merchant, placing an article in the window at a very low price and the customer calls for the goods, says we are just out—we had a big rush on them, and refuses to take the goods out of the window that he calls his "catch" he is no better than the man who willfully lies to his best friend -it is deception; it is a loss to the merchant who indulges in this, and is injurious to honest advertisers; it places a premium to make dishonest clerks-we endeavor to do an honest business; if one of our clerks misrepresents an article bring the goods back and get your money; it is a duty the public owes to report a dishonest misrepresentationvery often a business suffers when the merchant knows nothing about the trouble-we believe in advertising, but do not believe in carrying advertising to extremes like the man who once advertised his profession on his wife's tombstone and who carries his religion in his pocketbooknever tell the public you are selling goods at cost, never tell the public you buy goods less than any one else; even if you do hit the truth occasionally no one believes you—we believe in saying candidly we are in business for the profit there is in it; we believe in making a fair, square profit on every article we sell-sympathy is a poor excuse for charity; it is like giving a dog the bone after you have gnawed the meat off-it is dry picking-a merchant should conduct his business as a light house to lead the employees safely into port—this business is prospering-we are selling more goods than any dry goods house in this city—there is not a particle of question on this point-take each and every department; they are showing a large increase—there is not a department that is not showing a great increase—we have clerks who attend to their business; they are anxious to please, and pay extra attention to customers; there is no hanging back, no urging of sales; they treat customers pleasantly; they try to please and to gain the confidence of the trade by courteous methods; we do not hammer away on the old worn-out-thread-bare story of low prices—it is a dead letter; it smells rank; rotten timber don't make good fire woodthe people hanker after more dysters in their soup, and the larger the better; we want more trade; we can still do a hundred thousand dollars' worth more trade on an increase of not more than 5 per cent additional expense for clerk hire-how can we bring this about-this paper invades 12,000 homes—we endeavor to impress these homes with the one idea of good treatment; we endeavor to merit trade by telling you frankly we expect a profit on every article we sell; we endeavor to make truthful statements, and to merit trade on this basis-last year we made the largest increase ever made by a dry goods house in this city in one year's time, and placed this business far in the lead of all others-no one denies this fact, and we tell you candidly the trade now is far ahead of last year up to date; this is admitted by every one who has been a watcher of events; the dry rot has been cut out; progressive and active employees are engaged, and we push business by very large advertising-when a man says advertising don't pay he does not know how to advertise; it is the fault of the advertiser and not the advertising-the brightest business men of this country are the heaviest advertisers—it pays, and it pays to do it well.

Parties and Crowds at the Republiean Court.

screts for Inexperienced Hostesses-Sc cial Common Sense from a Washington Society Woman-Where All are Well Dressed.

Contributed to The Times

A young hostess is often prevented from entertaining her friends as generally as she would like, by a feeling that they will not enjoy coming to her house. "It is always so pleasant at Mrs. B.'s or Mrs. J.'s, but nobody will want to come spoken, thought. And when at last she does remember that parties and teas and festivities of all sorts are places for meeting others besides one's host and hostess, she falls into a new slough of despond over the size of her room and the totally disproportioned size o her visiting list, and she gives up once more the idea of receiving her friends under her own roof.

Now, whether the house be large or small, the experience is the same, for in these days the larger the house the larger the visiting list. The proportion does not vary.

It is also true, moreover, that our young housekeeper, and particularly he husband, as they go about from place to place, find the most strange and unac-countable differences in their enjoyment of certain evenings.

TWO PARTIES.

At the first place there were almost too many people: she was crowded about and her train was stopped on; he had some difficulty in getting supper and both of them were unmistakath was most agreeable, the women looke so well, the men were so delightful, th youths and maidens danced so merrily The next experience was altogethed different. Large rooms gave plenty of space, there was time and room enough space, there was time and room enough for supper, but the gowns showed signs of wear, the men were few and far between, or undeniably prosy, the girls sat in the corner and longed for partners. The husband congratulates his wife over the fire before they go to bed that they at least do not bore their neighbors with parties, and wonders why that house has no such "fuck" in entertainment as the first.

Neither of them see the close connecentertainment as the first.

Neither of them see the close connection between my lady's discouraged morning meditations over her visiting list and the evening reflections upon the successful entertainment. For in fact the one party was gay because it was a little too full, the other was dull because it was a little too guilt the consent. it was a little too empty. There is nothing an inexperienced or unreflectthere is nothing she ought to seek se ADVANTAGES OF A CROWD

If you undertake to analyze the se sations which made a given occasion interesting, so many things will enter in that no one reason can be given for success.

/ People enough is certainly a large People enough is certainly a large element. For one thing, there is always some one to talk to under these circumstances, and much touch and go in the conversation. If this is not real brilliancy it makes an elegant substitute for it. Men who are most agreeable for a passing greeting, have little or no small talk, and give you, indeed, a bad quarter of an hour when there is no one at hand to relieve them or you. The woman who is fascination itself at first, becomes intolerable if you cannot see another to take her place. A tete-a-tete—that paradise or purgatory, as the case may be—is at once possible and unnecessary if the room be full. You may retire to a convenient corner, secure from observation among so many if you wish, but you will not be under the necessity of talking half the evening with any one man or woman for lack of a possible method of depart-

Brief conversations are the rule, however, in a crowded room, and a short talk with many friends, and it is, these light and airy nothings that best suit such occasions. Such a state of things implies, too, that most of the guests are standing, and this makes introductions easy, and change from one person to another very simple. But in those unhappy parlors where "there is room enough" only the very bold will dare to cross the empty spaces to speak to a friend, and there will be no chance to meet the lion, because you are pushed up against him.

Another most decided advantage in

"too many people," is the obvious fac that among them all each will find those he wishes to see. Except in the verclose and compact circles of "society, par excellence, the grand dames of whose inner circles need no suggestions as to the business of entertainment, ex cept for such as these it is a great poin toward the satisfaction of the company to have it so varied that all shall find

In our diversified and democratic land every man has a score of interests, and when he opens his doors he likes to gather from all the circles where he counts men as friends. This is even more true of women.

The circles of the world of today in terlace in a bewildering entanglement. Let the host invite freely from them all. and then he will find that all his guests know so many other guests that each seems to know the whole company; and thus each remembers no pauses, no seasons of worder and dreary doubt, no conversations lengthened out long be yond the vanishing point, lest they have no successor at all.

EVERYBODY IS WELL DRESSED. There are incidental advantages, too Those gorgeous garments that looked so well when you had so little space or gowns that showed the wear or tear o the second season where there was plenty of room to display them. It is only the fortunate wearer of purple who can afford to desire room enoug to show her train. And in this countr men wear their dress suits an incred ble length of time. In all the East moreover, the gay young girls can only pray their friends to invite more and more, for else, where will there be men enough to dance the evening through?

And a similar cry for "girls enough"
goes up from many a Western town.
Every good rule, like every good person, has the defect of its qualities. It is true that so many people will fill the house a little too full, that it will be hot, and that you cannot eat your sup-per in peace. But these things are bet-ter than a dismal atmosphere for which no one can account. It is of no great matter if the temperature is above the normal (especially if there is some ven-tilation,) and the chief end of a party is guest most certainly expected will de-cline for reasons of their own, good, bad and indifferent. The heur comes to bad and indifferent. The heur comes to most entertainers, when those debated invitations will be a large reliance to fill the empty rooms, and even distinctly uninteresting guests will be greeted with great relief. So do not hesitate, whoever you may be, lest you have too large a number. Many and many a party has been wrecked for want of guests enough; but the few evils of a comfortable crowd are always forgotten in the remembered pleasure forgotten in the remembered pleasure of an evening of which it could be said "Everybody was there."

Selling Photographs to Pay the Expen

Many photographers who started as am-ateurs in the fascinating pursuit of taking pictures find themselves forced into doing little professional work in order to pay the expenses of their alluring hobby.
"One of the newest ways of these gentlemen," said a Harlem woman to a reporter the other day, "to persuade people, women especially, to order photographs, is being practiced pretty successfully among the flat house population.

flat house population.
"You know many a woman whose wants far outnumber her dollars would like to have her children's pictures taken to send to her friends, but she cannot spare the time to get the children and herself all dressed and then go with them; nor can she well afford the car fare, to say nothing of the charges which must be made by a photographer who pays office rent. Some washday morning, when she is up to her elbows in soapsuds, she answers a knock at the door, and is a good deal surprised to find a man there who holds before her eyes a pretty photograph of her own little ones.

and a man there who holds before her eyes a pretty photograph of her own little ones. "Where did you get that?" she asks.

"'I saw these pretty children,' answers the wily photographer, 'dressed so neatly going to the park the other day, and I took the liberty of grouping them, ma'am, upon the sidewalk and making a picture of them for my own collection. I am an amateur, always on the lookout for pretty subjects, and so I photographed the little ones for myself. When I saw how well it turned out. I though I would call and let turned out, I thought I would call and let you see it. If you would like a few for your-self I will make copies for twenty-five cents copi.

"Now if there is any time when children look well, babies especially, it is just after they have been fed and washed and dressed and sent out for a walk or a play. An hour afterward they look like different children. Now it's an exceptional woman who can resist the temptation of ordering a few pictures when she sees her favorite Johnny with his pretty curls looking extremely natural and smiling at her with eyes so like his father's. It is the nature of children to behave at their worst when a mother wants to show them off, and when nobody expects anything of them to act and look their prettiest.

"And now there they sit before their delighted mother, well taken, without any trouble to her, and if she has a dollar anywhere the photographer is pretty sure to "Now if there is any time when children where the photographer is pretty sure to get it. Indeed, sir, I think he was a cute man who first thought of that way to

"And what," asked the reporter, "of the plctures that don't flatter the children!"
"Well, if he's wise," was the answer, "the photographer keeps them dark, I suppose."—New York Tribune.

"There are certain persons," remarked a literary woman to one of her friends as she returned from an afternoon reception, "who are a perfect terror to me. When I go into society where they are I am quite given to creeps the salvers if I see them coming in my direction. They will plum down by my side in the most affectionate kittenish way, and immediately burst into all sorts of enthusiasm about something that I have recently written or—which is quite as likely—that they have recently read. There are two or three houses which I systematically and persistently stay away from just on this account. One of them is presided over by a woman whose principal occupation is artistic designing.

"I remember once, in a sort of retaliation for her gush over a sketch of mine she had been reading, that I turned to her with a kittenish way, and immediately burst int for her gusn over a sketch of mine she had been reading, that I turned to her with a great affectation of enthusiasm and said:

"Now, dear Mrs. A., please tell me all about the newest designs for carpets and upholstery. I know you do such lovely ones, and really I haven't seen novelties for quite awhile."

"She gave a little grimace of disgust and weariness, and exclaimed:

weariness, and exclaimed:

"'Oh, please don't ask me to talk shop.
I get so tired of the everlasting grind of it.
I had much rather talk about that delightful story of yours.'

"It's a curious fact that people never seem to realize that to a certain extent lit-erary work is drudgery. Of course it has its pleasant features, but all the same there is a deal or hard work attached to it, and writers, as well as other workers, enjoy a little respite from what is to them the humdrum of the daily labor."—New York

The power used in iron ore mining in the United States is enormous. The official returns from the various mines report a total of more than 1,100 steam boilers, with an aggregate of some 58,000 horsepower; and these boilers furnish steam to about and these boilers furnish steam to about 1,100 steam engines, including air compressors, hoisting machinery, engines for driving washers, crushers, etc., some of large size. These engines, however, do not in most instances include the motive power for pumps, in a majority of cases the latter being rated independent of the properties are locomotive would be. an the returns made, however, there were about eighty pumps mentioned independ-ent of steam engines, twenty locomotives used in and about the mines, four steam shovels employed in digging or handling ore, eight turbine wheels driving machin-ery, and ten air compressors worked by water power.

Of course the application of steam and of course the application of seam and compressed air in the iron mines has very largely reduced the number of animals employed in and about the mines, and it is to be remarked that Michigan, on account of its numerous deep mines, and as the largest producer of iron ore, stands at the liead of these data of machinery and power.

Such a whirl of festivity as the past week has been. To attend the numerou receptions, teas, luncheons and card parties and keep out of the wet was enough to wear one out. The weather, as everyone knows, has been simply use a vulgar but expressive English term. This week, in spite of the fact that next Wednesday is the beginning of Lent, promises quite as much gayety. Tuesday alone offers enough entertain ments to suffice for a whole week, it one could accomplish the feat of being in a dozen places at once. But then, it is the day before Ash Wednesday, and also Valentine's day, and perhaps that accounts for it. The card basket innounces a reception given by Mr. Lowe, on Monday evening from 8 to 11, at their palatial Pasadena home, to which many Los Angeles guests have been bidden.

The Misses tained a large number of friends very delightfully on Thursday evening. Drive whist was the amusement, some seventy-five guests participating. Delicious refreshments

On Tuesday Mrs. John Ellis of the Mel-rose and Mrs. Will Barber of Figueroa street will give receptions at their respective places of residence. Mrs. A. Mullen, Miss Mullen and Mrs. Emile Hoffman, of No. 3110 Grand avenue, have also issued at home cards for Tueshay, from 2 to 5 p.m., to meet Miss Rosecrans of Washington, D. C. Mrs. Bradner Lee will have a coterie of young ladies to drink tea with her on Tuesday afternoon. In the evening there will be a card party at the Perry mansion, on Pearl street, and another at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Forman. On Wednesday Lent begins, and there seems to be a temporary lull, in order to give society an opportunity to make a good beginning in her devo-tions, possibly. The calendar shows a toncert, however—a violin recital by H. E. Hamilton and pupils at Y.M.C.A. Hall. The Woman's Parliament at Pasadena also opens on Wednesday.

On Thursday there is the Widney reception, which will doubtless call out a multitude of ladies, as the storm last week interfered so seriously with their reception of last Thursday. Dr. and Mrs. W. G. Cochran will give a large reception on Friday evening, at their home on Olive street. Co. A, Seventh Infantry, N.G.C., announce their midwinter ball for next Friday evening at Armory Hall.

THE SEVERANCE RECEPTION.

The event of the season among the Los Angeles elite was the reception given by Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Severance last Thursday evening at their magnificent home on Adams street. / To it were bidden the elect of the charmed inner circle of society, numbering about two hundred guests. Entering the man-sion from the canvas enclosed porches, the guests were received by Mr. Severance, who stood just at the outer entrance of the great rotunda-like hall, from the walls of which flashed scores of gas jets, shimmering through sconces, supplemented by the soft glow of wax candles. The guests passed up the broad staircase to the floor above, where the dressing-rooms were. On the first landing was a curtain of smilax gracefully draped from the alcove behind, and a profusion of smilax-wreathed pictures, sconces and portieres, but no special floral decora-tion was attempted, in accordance with the latest Eastern custom. Bowls of exquisite roses blossomed in convenient niches, as if they grew by nature there. Mrs. Severance, in an elegant gown of canary silk, richly trimmed with old point lace, received the guests in the pink and gold reception-room at the assisted by Mrs. Gorham of Santa Monica, Mrs. H. T. Lee, Miss Seymour and Mrs. C. J. Ellis. The affair was characterized by an informality that added much to the pleasure of the guests. The music of the orchestra, which floated down from the floor above, proved irresistible for the young people, and the rugs were accordingly removed from the hall, and soon the dancers were gliding over the polished floor. At 10:30 colored waiters moved quietly through the rooms laying Janaese through the rooms, laying Japanese tables in the hall, library, reception or drawing-room, wherever the guests happened to be, and serving delicate refreshments. A feast of reason, a flow of soul and of champagne followed.

Previous to this bon bons were passed Previous to this bon bons were passed about, the guests decking themselves with the fanciful paper caps amid much popping of bon bons and merriment. The toilets of the ladies were exceptionally beautiful and elaborate, and the affair was pronounced by social leaders to eclipse in elegance anything of a similar nature that has recently oc-

THE BANNING RECEPTION.

The reception given by Mrs. Hancock Banning last Thursday afternoon at her handsome home, which crowns the height of Fort Hill, was one of the most brilliant social functions of the week brilliant social functions of the week. In spite or the drizzling rain outside, the spirit and enthusiasm of the guests were not in the least dampened, or the costumes any the less elaborate. The blinds were drawn, shutting out the dreary, dismal day, and a flood of gas light shed its luminous rays on the throng, which gathered in the handsome parlors, where a wealth of peach some parlors, where a wealth of peach biossoms gave delicate fragrance and color, conveying a hint of approaching spring when the clouds shall have rolled away. A large Indian basket filled with these delicate blossoms was an artistic feature of the parlor decorations. Exquisite Duchess roses also found a place among the garlands of smilax and clusters of ferns. From the library floated out soft, sweet strains of music and in the hall bright poinsetia blos-soms nodded a warm welcome to the incoming guests.

Mrs. Banning, attired in a salmon Mrs. Banning, attired in a salmon pink Empire gown with mousseline de sole drapery, received the guests, and was assisted by a bevy, of ladies in entertaining them. Mrs. Jo Banning wore a stylish yellow brocade with crimson zouave jacket and bouffant sleeves. Mrs. George Patton looked charming in a delicate blue gown with a white mist of lace-like drapery. Mrs. Russell wore a lovely lavender crépe. Mrs. George Denis was all in white with long black gloves. Miss Lulu Glassell wore a delicate cream lace gown over

A RECHERCHE DINNER PARTY.

Last Wednesday Mrs. E. A. Preuss and her sister, Mrs. C. Schumacher gave a delightful dinner party at their residence on South Broadway. The affair was in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Strath-more and Mr. and Mrs. Bailey of Chi-cago. Covers were laid for ten, and the event was characterized by that ele-gance and taste which is a feature of all entertainments given by these ac-complished matrons. The name cards were out of the ordinary, being deli-cate sea shells beautifully hand painted. Roses formed the chief decorations. DRIVE WHIST.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Conroy enterlicious refreshments were served throughout the evening, and elegant prizes in gold and silver awarded the fortunate winners. Mrs. Fred C. Howes and Mrs. Robert Hardie won the ladies' first and second prizes, Mr. Howes and Mr. Childress the gentle-men's prizes.

men's prizes. THE HOLTERHOFF RECEPTION.

STUDENTS' RECEPTION.

Wednesday evening Prof. and Mrs. Hough gave a most enjoyable reception to the students of the Woodbury Busi-ness College at their residence, No. 1181 South Hill street. Although the weather was exceedingly disagreeable over one hundred were present. The entire house was at the disposal of the entire nouse was at the disposal of the guests, and they were entertained, during the earlier part of the evening, by music, recitations and games. Prof. Wilson, accompaned by C. W. Stevens, rendered two of his popular violin solos. Prof. Hough and Miss Rifinberick, with their banjos, and Mrs. Hough, with her papular members of the popular their banjos, and Mrs. Hough, with her guitar, members of the popular Ideal Guitar and Banjo Club, were as usual heartly encored. Miss Pearlie Gleason rendered a very amusing selection, and, after a few words of welcome, Prof. Hough favored his guests with a selection illustrating an awkward boy delivering his first recitation, and responded to an encore. The refreshments were served in a novel manner, and the evening's entertainment ended and the evening's entertainment ended with a flash-light photograph of the guests, taken by Mr. Goodhue, of the commercial department. The students were of one accord in pronouncing their host and hostess as model entertainers, and regard the occasion as one of the pleasant social events they ever enjoyed.

ACES AND SPADES.

He was sentenced by the "Kort" to treat the entire assembly to peanuts and taffy. The next case on Judge Stearns's calendaa was that of the People vs. William McNutt, for grand larceny. It was alleged by the prosecution that on the 7th inst. the prisoner had stolen a valuable pet burro belonging to the company.

The defendant, with the aid of Harry

The slave trade, with all the iniquitous conditions attending it, is all the time rapidly increasing in Central Africa. The Arab slave hunter, after gaining wealth, does not retire. On the contrary, with the profit of each new venture he buys more guns and ammunition and hires fresh bands of pillaging followers so that he may enlarge the sphere of his murderous exploits.

Veritable armies of Zanzibaris and Mangemas, officered by Arabs, are constantly engaged in the capture of the natives and the robbery of their ivory.

The slavers have several strongholds in Central Africa, the principal of them being Tabora, Karèma, Kasongo, Ny-angwe Ujiji and Stanley Falls. Large hordes of hired robbers branch out in all directions from these depots and swarm over the whole land. Their plan of action is to steathily surround a village by night; then at early dawn a few muskets are fired to intimidate the villagers. Bewildered at the rude awakening the poor creatures rush out of their huts and fall an easy prey to the inhuman villans, who leap into the village from all sides. All those who resist are shot down or stabbed, and the remainder, old and young, are taken prisoners and are herded into a stockaded pen and are there guarded

The ivory eventually reaches Zanzibar, on the east coast. When a goodly pile has been "collected" at one of the strongholds a caravan of slave gangs carries it to the Indian Ocean. bloody history is buried. It has been frequently said by travelers who have followed the trade of the slaver, that so littered is the way with grinning skull and whitened skeleton, that should you lose your bearings these grim relics would guide you to the coast. At Stauley Falls in 1889 Tippu Tip had 70,000 pounds of ivory which had been "collected" by his numerous bands in about ten months. To carry this to the coast 1500 men would be required. When Jacques and Joubert built a garrison on Lake Tanganyika in the in-terests of the Anti-Slavery Society the Arebs immediately constructed a fort near by and commenced an attack, and grave fears are entertained that the white men have ere this shared the fate of poor Hodester and his friends.

A DAY OF RECKONING COMING. The suppression of slavery is a giant undertaking, but stern measures for its accomplishment are being carried out with grand deliberation. The Congo Free State is all the time strengthening its frontiers to the west. The English and Germans are about to put well armed gruboats on the great lakes Tanganyika and Nyassa. The natives will be taught to know the white man's in tentions and they will readily enlist in a crusade undertaken for their deliver-ance. The Modern Drawing-room

[Boston Traveler.] Have you ever thought of the atmospheric effects of drawing-rooms? In the days of slippery haircloth and bare marble, when a black hole in the floor had just replaced the "air tight," and in place of the Bible a Rogers group stood on the black walnut stand in th bay window, then there was about everything a sort of formality. We were just slipping out of the appella-tion "best room." But the suggestion of best clothes and best behavior remained. All this in turn was overlanged by the plush era. We had everything in sets. A red plush "parlor set" had its high, shaky, ebonized table with dangling gilt chains, this, topped with a majolica flower pot of artificial flowers, and the bay window was again adorned. But the chignons and ruffles of society could not lend a "lived-in" air to the red and gi't stiffness, and we moved on.

Next the decorative scourge fell upon us; and from Cape Cod to Tacoma everything with a surface was "hand-painted." Oh, the fire shovels, snow painted." Oh, the fire shovels, snow shovels, fans, sofa pillows and chair seats that caught and painfully retained the flying paint! But the move was forward, we were no longer stiff.

Then we draped. We took down our doors, we smothered our mantels, pianos and pictures in divers stuffs. Not a chair or table but had its scrap end of ribbon and silk. The wreckage of the bargain counter was utilized for drawing-room decorations. Result, the drawing-room, already "mussed up" to a point that any amount of occupation could not render worse, became more of an every-day affair.

And now the drawing-room of today. Harmonizing colors, soft-shaded lamps and open fires are the result of judic ng and are a cheery exponent of home life at its best.

He Discusses President Harrison and Savs He Defeated the Republican Party-The Secretary of the Interior and Why He Should Come from the West-Senator Cal Brice and His Presidential Bee-His Social Career at Washington and His Charity at Lima, Etc.

Washington, Feb. 3.—I had a chat last night with Judge Holman, during which I asked him as to President Han rison's future. Judge Holman replied "I don't know what the President will do after he leaves the White House, but I suppose he will go back to Indian-apolis to live. He has, you know, a good house there, and is a rich man."

"How much is he worth?" said I. "Ob, I don't know exactly," replied Judge Holman, "but he has made a good deal of money out of his law practice, and he ought to have saved a lot since he was elected. The White House is by no means an expensive place for a President in comparison with his salary, and I doubt not that Harrison has saved from $125,000 to $150,000 during his Presidential term. He gets a great deal more than his mere salary. He has his house furnished. His servants cost him practically nothing. His fuel and lights are paid by the Gove ernment. He makes a good spread at his receptions with flowers and servants but these are almost all given him by the Government, and a great part of his floral decorations come from the greenhouse at the White House. It would, it seems to me, be a high estimate to say that either he or President Cleveland can have spent more than $12,000 or $15,000 a year during their Presidential terms.

"Then I suppose President Harrison must be worth at least $200,000?" "I don't know," replied Judge Hol-man. "Two hundred thousand dollars man. "Two hundred thousand dollars is a great deal of money. Still, I suppose President Harrison was worth somewhere between $50,000 and $100,000 when he entered the White House. He has always been a frugal man and he has never wasted money in foolish extravagance. He has never spent much in his campaigns, and dur-ing his stay in Washington, before he became President, he led a very simple life and did not waste anything in entertaining."

CLEVELAND AND THE OFFICE HOLDERS. "How about Cleveland, Judge? Do in the offices?"

"No, I don't," was the reply. "I think he will increase the list of men in the civil service, and that few changes will be made. I think many of the foreign appointments will remain as they are. I was with President Cleveland once in the White House during his term, when a delegation called to ask him to remove one of the South American ministers. They stated their case while I was there and President Cleveland listened soberly to them. After they went out he turned to me and said: "It seems to me that these men are very unreasonable. The man they want to remove has been in that place for eight years. He gave up his business to go there. He has learned the language of the country and has be-come settled. He is doing his duty better than a new man could do it. I don't see why we should change him and I won't.

"I have heard President Cleveland express himself forcibly upon this matter at other times," continued Judge Hol-man, "and I don't think he wants to make many changes. President Harri-son has kept a number of his appointés in office, and there will probably be a great many disappointed men about the time that the new appointments are expected to be made. UNCLE SAM GOING TO RETRENCH.

"What is your idea, Judge, of the next four years? Are we going to have an era of retrenchment in Government expenses?"
"We are bound to have," was the re ply. "Uncle Sam is becoming, a spend thrift, and during the last few years his pocketbook has been open to every one and to everything. Our people are gradually growing very extravagant, and our Federal taxes must be cut down. We must reduce them, not by millions, but by the tens of millions, and we have got to do this in order to and we have got to do this in order to maintain republican institutions. I don't care how rich we get if we can keep down the taxes. We are now the richest nation on the face of the globe, and we are growing richer every year. and we are growing treaser every year.

As long as the money is properly distributed, it is all right, but our enormous taxation is bringing about centralization of wealth. The money is collected dollar by dollar from the seventy-odd million people of the country, and the hundreds of millions thus collected fall into the hands of tens of thousands. The result is that the rich are growing richer and to a certain extent it seems to me that the poor are growing poorer. We have got to cut down taxation."

hordes of emigrants upon us so fast that we could not digest and assimilate them. Had the country been settled up more slowly America would now be inhabited by Americans instead of consisting of a succotash of nations. The opening of these lands took capital by the millions and men by the thousands from the Eastern States. This was not noticed at first, but the lands of the East have now fallen in consequence. noticed at first, but the lands of the East have now fallen in consequence. Farms in the great valley of the Ohio have depreciated 30 per cent. and more within the last twenty years, and along the Ohio River, where land was worth $200 per acreten years ago, you can now get it for $50. Many of these land grants were bought by foreigners. English and German capitalists own nearly all the 40,000,000 acres granted to the Northern Pacific Railroad, and Mr. Carter, the Land Comroad, and Mr. Carter, the Land Com-missioner under Harrison, told me the other day that foreign capitalists own 5,000,000 acres of mineral lands in Montana which are filled with an al-most inexhaustible wealth. The emigrants got their lands in the West on a small cash payment. Bad crops re-sulted in their not being able to pay the interest, and there are today more ten-ant farmers in Kansas than in In-diana. The end of the trouble has by no means come. The strikes and an archy shown here and there over the country are a foretaste of it. The real danger will appear about twenty-tive years from now when the whole coun try is taken up by settlers, and when the question of daily bread will be a vital one with millions."

A CHAT WITH SENATOR WOLCOTT.

The above are the ideas of an old man of one of the oldest States. I want to offset them with a chat I had yesterday with one of the brightest young men of the West. Senator Wolcott of Colorado is the best human type which grows west of the Mississippi. Sprouted in the nursery of New England from one of the oldest families of our history, and the oldest families of our history, and surrounded by the associations of the Puritans and Yale College, he was pulled from the ground by his own energy and ambition and transplanted as a young man into one of the wildest parts of the mining regions of Colorado. With a great great grandfather who was one of the first Governors of the Connecticut colony, with a great grand uncle who was George Washington's Secretary of the Treasury, and ton's Secretary of the Treasury, and with no end of relatives in the revolu-tionary war, he dropped his genealogical tree in the East and began life as young lawyer at Georgetown, Colo. When he first practiced law there he tells me that the judges often pulled pistols out of their coat pockets and inforced order at the point of a gun. He soon showed himself able to take his stand with the best of them. Georgestand with the best of them. Georgetown soon got too small for him and he went to Denver. He is now one of the ablest Senators from the West and he has shown that his gray matter is fully equal to his blue blood. He never says anything about his family, however, and he has made his way by sheer force and brain power. He is a great reader and gets more by intuition and quickness of intellect than the plodders of the Senate do by hard work. He has the muscles of a prize fighter and he is the personification of physical vigor.

est. He replied:
"It cannot be estimated. We have hardly begun to scratch the surface of our possibilities. There are vast re-gions west of the Mississippi which will you think he will make many changes be eventually settled, and the center of population will soon be west of the Mississippi. A large part of the West, which is now considered worthless, will be in the future the best agricultural part of the United States, and a vast manufacturing country will grow up or the edge of the Rocky Mountains.

I asked him as to the future of the COLORADO THE NEW YORK OF THE FUTURE "Take, for instance, Colorada. It is looked upon as made up of mountains and deserts. It will be within another life-time the greatest State of the Union. It will surpass New York, and it will have the same political influence some day that New York has now. fifty years its population will be as great as that of New York, and it will surpass Pennsylvania in its manufacturing. We have gotten millions upon millions out of our gold and silve mines, but we will get more than this out of our coal fields. We have thou sands of square miles of the fines anthracite coal, some of the veins of which are twenty-five feet deep. You will not find this coal in any quantity outside of Pennsylvania. If our coal veins could be spread out over New York State, according to the estimate of a noted geologist, they would cover it with a carpet of fine coal seven fee thick. There is first-class iron near these coal fields, and we are just be-ginning to develop our manufacturing. We have vast oil fields in Colorado, and we are already supplying all the cities of the United States west of Denver with coal oil.

COLORADO -AN AGRICULTURAL EMPIRE "Colorado is to be the great farming empire of the United States," Senator Wolcott went on. "We have already millions of acres of land under cultivation, and every inch of the Colorad desert will some day be cultivated. Within not many years we will have a great storage system which will catch the water of the Rocky Mountains and spread it over that vast area. When it does every inch of that land will laugh with the harvest. There is no land so rich as the Colorado desert. Wherever you find the sagebrush growing you may know the land is full of meat. All it wants is water, and, with irrigation, we will never have a failure of crops. I am not talking in a boasting way. Colorado is destined to be the greatest State of the Union, and the young men of the West are to be the most influen-tial men of our future."

Their physical surround-ings stimulate their intellects, breed in them imagination, harden their mus cles and give variety to their life. In my State you keep your lungs filled with ozone. You breathe champagne as it were, and all that there is in you is gotten out. People who get their living out of the fat loam of the prairies breed into mediocre sameness. Their towns are all the same, and all alike. The people see every day the same flat, uninteresting landscape, and their only conversation is whether there will be forty or forty-five bushels to the acre."

RATHER HARD ON THE PRESIDENT. "By the way, Senator, I see that Colorado is fast chauging its politics. Is the State going to belong to the Populists?"
"No," replied Senator Wolcott.

"Our mining population and our farmers don't care a cent for the Populists. They were disgusted with Harrison and did not like Cleveland. They wanted to show their displeasure at the way things were going and they voted for the third party. This was so all over the country, and had we nominated any other Republican but Harrison he would have been elected. Had Blaine been nominated I believe he would be alive today and would have taken his place in the White House on the 4th of March. The unpopularity of our candidate was surprising, I don't speak of him so on personal grounds. We of Colorado never made but one request of him during his administration; and this he did not grant. Had he granted it it would have made no difference. He is a peculiar character. He is the only man ! know who can offend a man in granting his request. He can't even say 'yes decently, and there is hardly a public man in the country whom he has not insulted or angered. This was felt in the Republican party all over the Union and there was a deadly apathy in our ranks. We would have carried Nev York if we had had a full Republican vote, and I am sure we would have elected our ticket, had some one else

THE WEST AND THE SECRETARY OF THE IN TERIOR.

"Another reason for President Harrison's failure." Senator Wolcott went on, "is that he has paid no attention to the West during his administration. His trip to California did him no harm and not much good. You can't affect the people of the West by bows and the people of the west by bows and promises. They want acts and work. Harrison offended them by proclaiming against silver in advance of legislation, and he worse than ignored the West by giving us a Secretary of the Interior had no conception of us who had no conception of us nor Western interests. Secretary Noble has been utterly inefficient and impracticable. He has hampered rather than furthered the interests of the country. Why, he actually tied up 6,000,000 acres in Colorado to keep it from being settled. The Interior Department is the greatest business department of our Government. Its head should be a good lawyer, but at the same time a practical, far-seeing business man. We want the biggest men, the broadest men and the best men of the country for such positions. We and, as to the Interior Department, men who are acquainted with the West and Western interests. I don't know who President Cleveland's Secretary of the Interior will be, but it is to be hoped that he will come from the West."

CAL BRICE AND THE PRESIDENTIAL BEE. Senator Calvin S. Brice of Ohio has within the past two years jumped away to the front as a national quantity. He is one of the most influential men of the Senate, and he has made friends by the thousands during his stay here in Washington. He is a man of wonderful clearness of intellect, great powers of organization and unbounding ambition. While I was in Ohio I visited the part of the State from which he came, and I found evidence everywhere that a great big Presidential bee has gotten into his auburn hair, and that his schemes are pointing to the White House. He hoped that the Presidential lightning would strike him at the convention which nominated Cleveland last year, and he is in the White House race for the future for all he is worth. There is no limit to his ambition, and he has a far better chance of success than one would at first glance imagine. He comes from a pivotal State. He is at present the strongest Democratic quan-tity in that State, and he is making himself stronger every day. There is no man in the Senate who has a man in the Senate who has a better political organization than Mr. Brice. He keeps a corps of clerks constantly at work send-ing out documents, seeds and letters to his constituents, and he has studied the ing out documents, seeds and letters to spasms by the stell reprintant water his constituents, and he has studied the people of Ohio so that he knows them almost down to individuals. Every editor in the State has received from him a map, and nearly every prominent Democrat has a big photograph of print water and the provided with the large state of the lar with a great man. All the colleges and educational institutions get the Smithsonian geological survey and educational reports, with what appear to be private letters from Mr. Brice, and every farmer who could be be supported by the state of the state o do his cause any good has had one of these horse books, which are very hard to get, but which Senator Brice's men have captured and sent out in some way or other. Brice is working on a grand scale the same scheme that one of his agents, ex-Congressman LeFevre worked when he was in the House. LeFevre confined it to his district. Brice has extended it to the whole State of Ohio, and before this session is over the scheme will probably include. over the scheme will probably include, in one way or other, the leading Demo-crats of the whole United States. There is nothing like personal contact or con tact by letter with a man to insure his vote and his support, and Brice is working this thought to the fullest extent. He is sparing no money to make him-self felt, and his millions are merely tools in his hands. A part of his scheme is his big social character at Washing-ton, upon which he has entered by rent-ing the Corcoran mansion and remodeling it at a vast expense. He spent last year something like $1200 a month for his rooms at the Arlington, and he gave one dinner which is said to have cost him more than $12,000. I find that this last fact is hurting him to some extent in Ohio. Democrats who work for $1 a day are astounded at a man paying $12,000 for a single dinner, and they can't understand how human stomachs can eat so much money at one time. He has given a big dinner nearly every week this season, and his entertainments have been the finest of the year. He started life, you know, as a poor boy. He has made his own for-tune, and the probability is that he can be far more extravagant in expending it and keeping the good will of the peo-ple, than a man who started life rich. He never makes any fuss about his charity, but I happen to know that he gives away a great deal to the poor. Not long ago he gave $500 to a church in a little town near Lima, and during the late cold snap he gave orders for hun-dreds of barrels of flour to be bought and distributed to the poor in different parts of the country.

Instinct Crops Out When a Pile of Chips Is Handy. [Exchange.]

If you are a parent with a hopeful on; a guardian with a hopeless ward, or a business man with a confidential clerk in whose future you take an interest, and if you suspect your son, your ward or your clerk of the evil habit of gambling, you are advised to put him through the "chip shuffling" test. If the youngster is able to "juggle the ivories" give him up as a hopeless case, or take such heroic methods for his reformation as genuine anxiety may dictate. His case is indeed a serious one. Chip juggling is the mute shibboleth, the sign language of the gambling fraternity. While veteran gamblers are noted for their nerve, they are full of bottled-up nerves. As soon as a man "sits in a game"

"goes against faro," etc., the dealer immediately "sizes" him up. If he non-chalantly takes a stack of chips in one hand, drops one at a time, each turning a somersault, landing upon the preced-ing one and forming a stalagmite, as it were, on another stack, then the dealer knows that there is a shrewd expert be

All the tricks appear simple, but are exceedingly difficult, as every tender-foot finds when he first essays them. The shuffle is one of the hardest to perform, the flip-flop next. Another, apparently simple, is to spin one chip upon the top of a stack without its falling off, and as its rotary motion dies away it settles upon the top of the pile. A more common trick, and one easier to accomplish, is to take a stack in one hand and turn the bottom one over and over. It is always safe to keep out of a game of stud poker or fare with a man who is an expert at chip juggling.

The Care of Books.

[New York Times.]
A distinguished man remarked not long ago that there is no surer test of culture than the way in which one handles a book. "All those who have any experience of the deeper life," he said, "think of books as almost human beings. Even a book which is not worth much in itself is still treated by them with respect, since it wears the outward guise of what they have learned to consider their best friends.' He went on to condemn the senseless and offensive manner in which choir singers often abuse their hymn books. bending them backward until the cov ers meet, and holding them throughout an entire hymn. This vandalism is not alas, confined to the class mentioned.

A certain housekeeper, who also takes this just and noble view of books, al-most frightened her parlor maid into spasms by the stern reprimand which

The same bright sunshine was overhead; the same magnificence of nature's charms filled the beautiful perspective, but my heart was not drawn to it as of old, for it was no longer home. That, with its loved ones was elsewhere, and their absence took somewhat from the charm which heretofore nature had presented to me there. How much there is in this idea of home, I thought, to draw us toward nature. We love the scenes where we have been happy, whuman friendships were dearest. move those and even nature is, for us, the loser as well as ourselves.

What should we be without home?
Let us think of that and shut out from our homes all jealousy and distrust, guarding forever against unkind words, and coldness and neglect. Here all that is best and noblest in human character may be cultivated, and mutual love will be like the rain, the dew and the sunshine, which nurture growth and fill the world with beauty.

I came across today the following beautiful passage from the pen of Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, in the February number of the Ladies' Home Journal, in regard to the influence of woman in the home. It has so much of truth that I will copy it, and let us women bear in mind the full force of its meaning.

"When at last we come to calculate the forces that decided the destiny of all nations, it will be found that the mightiest and grandest influence came from home, where the wife cheered up despondency, and fatigue, and sorrow by her own sympathy, and the mother trained her child for heaven, starting the little feet on the path to the celes tial city; and the sisters, by their gen-tleness, refined the manners of the brother; and the daughters were diligent in their kindness to the aged, throwing wreaths of blessing on the road that leads father and mother down the steep of years. Need I go into history to find you illustrations? Ah, no! In your own memory there is at least one such.'

NOTES. Five New Cake Recipes.—A delightful sponge cake is made by beating the yolks of six eggs and two cups of sugar together, and adding the beaten whites. Add to this mixture one cup of flour and ten tablespoonfuls of boiling water. Then a second cupful of flour and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Eshot oven.
Good Plain Cake.—Cream together

half a cupful of butter and two of su-gar, and the beaten yolks of three eggs. alf a cupful of milk and three cupfuls of flour, into which has been sifted three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, and, lastly, the whites of the eggs, beaten until light and frothy. Stir briskly, pour into buttered baking tins.

Coventry Fruit Cake .- One-half pound of butter and one pound of sugar creamed together. Add one pound of eggs, one pound of carefully prepared currants, one pound of stoned raisins, one-quarter of a pound of citron and lemon peel, a little cinnamon, allspice and cloves, and a few sweet and bitter almonds blanched and pounded. Mix with one pound of flour and two tea-spoonfuls of baking powder, and bake in a moderate oven.

Delicious Almond Cakes.—Take the whites of six eggs, one pound of pulwhites of six eggs, one pound of pul-verized sugar, an ounce of ground cinnamon, a pound of almonds, blanched and chopped fine, and the grated rind of one lemon. Mix all together until quite stiff; roll moderately thin, using as little flour as possible; cut in the shape of stars, and bake in a very slow oven.

Tutti Frutti Cake .- Beat to a cream : cup of fresh butter and two cups of powdered sugar, to which add the well-beaten yolks of four eggs, a cup of sweet milk, a tablespoonful of cold water, th well-beaten whites of two eggs, and last of all three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, sifted with an extra cup of flour. Bake in jelly cake tins in a hot oven, being careful to have the tins well greased and slightly warmed before reased and slightly warmed before couring the batter into them. When cold, spread between each layer of cake the following mixture: The well-beaten whites of two eggs, enough pulverized sugar to make a soft icing, a teaspoonful of vanilla extract, half a cupful of the best raisins carefully stoned and chopped fine, two tablespoonfuls of currants, well washed, dried and picked, and an equal quantity of orange marmalade. This quantity will make two good-sized layer cakes, which may be iced and otherwise orna-mented, as fancy dictates.

Curiosity About the Stamps.

An elderly lady in a modest manner leaned over the counter of a drug store, and pointing to a letter with a Colum-bian stamp, asked:

"Will you please tell me if these stamps are good for just common use?" When assured that they were so intended she bowed politely and remarked as she left: "I didn't'know. I thought they were to be used, perhaps, for eliquette."

WOMAN'S ADVANCE.

The Brainy Women of the Chicago University.

> The First Fellow Appointed Was Not Man-Mrs. Alice F. Palmer, Head College.

Contributed to The Times.

The establishment of the Chicago University marked a step in both educa tion and civilization. When the univer sity project was made public, for the first time in the history of the world, it was taken absolutely for granted that women were to be admitted. perfect equality of the standing of the men and women in the minds of trustees was shown by the fact that the question of sex had never been mentioned.

The dormitory and gymnasium distinctions are absorbed the only ones. The five wome of the faculty are especially remark able for one reason. Men have been "home, sweet home."

Every man, no matter how great his business cares, should have some hours institutions to train them. They have been preparing from boyhood. These women must necessarily be in a great measure self-trained, and yet they were able to come here and take their places and ask for no odds.

HEAD DEAN OF THE WOMAN'S COLLEGE To be the dean of a college requires a fine equipment of faculties and acquirements. A dean has an oversight similar to the watchfulness of a college president. The institution is on higher plane than that of rules and dis There are no rules here. The largest number of students are men and women who have taken one or two de grees in other institutions. The tone is given by the post-graduates. Among the women students are graduates from twenty-eight colleges and universities. It is the intention of the head dean, Mrs. Alice Freeman Palmer, to keer the social tone of the college at the

Like all women and men who have been pronounced successes in any avo-cation which calls for large contact with people, Mrs, Palmer first attracts by her personality and then holds by her attainments. She represents American possibilities—and probabilities. She was born in Broome county, N. Y. There is something to be said in favor of a youth passed in the country; for one thing the distance from standards keeps th nind from stunting its own growth by comparisons. When she was 16 her father sent her to Ann Arbor. This school was her choice, because it gave her a chance to pit her intellectual powers against men as well as women. She graduated four years later, in 1876.. This student's influence was felt all through the institution. As an in-stance, the Young Men's Christian As-sociation in Michigan University was singularly conservative for a society in a co-educational institution—it only re-ceived the young women fellow-stu-dents as "visitors." After Miss Freeman's arrival the character and even the name of the organization was changed that she might become a It was because she had something priceless to give to the organization out of the abundance of her nature, her attainments and her sympathetic knowledge of what is best in the world. Three years after her graduation Miss Freeman went to Wellesley Col lege simply to take the classes in his tory. Now. years ago she married Prof. George H. Palmer of Harvard College. It was a general disappointment that the two could not be brought together to the University of Chicago.

Mrs. Palmer comes for twelve weeks in each year, ostensibly as a lecturer upon history; really in that twelve weeks she is making a visitation of inspiration, as she is a living illustration of the ends of a thorough education. MISS TALBOT, PROPESSOR OF SANITARY

SCIENCE. During Mrs. Palmer's absence the head dean of women is Miss Marion Talbot from Boston and Wellesley Col-

partment of the American Social Science Society. Mrs. Talbot was the suggestor of the Intercollegiate Alumnæ Association, of which her daughter is secretary. This association has three members among the women of the university faculty, and shows itself a strong educational force.

Miss Taibot worked for three winters with this new association. The mem-bers all studied household sanitation, and a little book was written upon this subject by some of its members, Miss Talbot being one of its editors. She was given so strong an impetus in this direction that she entered the Boston School of Technology, and in 1888 re-ceived there the degree of B. S. She lectured at Lasell Seminary upon household sanitation and the science of foods. Afterward she was instructor in domes-tic science in Wellesley College.

Miss Talbot was called to the Chicago

University primarily for her executive ability. She had been president of a society for the education of women, trustee of Boston University and offi-cial visitor at Wellesley. She gives personal advice to the students in planning their university work. She lives in the Beatrice, the temporary woman's dormitory, as a student among students. During Mrs. Palmer's absence Miss Talbot acts as hostess upon all social occasions.

The spirit of her work upon sanitary science, as it is given to her mixed classes at the university, is not techni-cal. She does not train plumbers. It is her effort to give a general knowledge of the subject from the standpoint of social science. She was a pioneer in this important branch, and really added it to the course of our universi

In her classes the sanitation of the dwelling is considered as the unit of public health. Buildings of good and bad construction are inspected and critical reports made. The intention is to make the courses in house sanitation sanitary aspects of water, food and clothing, and the economy of living, a foundation for future duties as house holders, owners and agents of tenements students of social reform, administra tors of schools, hospitals, prisons and kindred institutions, and practical philanthropists.

LECTURES ON LITERATURE. Mrs. Martha Foote Crowe has lately returned from Europe, where she was sent by the National Bureau of Education to collect material for a blue book of the Government upon the "Higher Education of Women." She spent a year in England and upon the continent at this work, and formed several societies similar to the Intercollegiate Alumnæ Association of America of which she is first vice-president. Mrs. Crowe was educated at Syracuse University. She was the wife of the late Prof. J. M. Crowe, a noted archæologist, who made many important ex cavations in Greece and Asia Minor. Much of her experience as well as her education has been gained in a co educational institution, and for this one of many reasons she is well adapted to take her place in the faculty of the university.

Mrs. Crowe has been chairman of the Education Progress Committee, and being brought into communication with institutions and educators, has had an unusual opportunity to study systems. She considers the Chicago University the best opportunity that has ever been given to witness the perfect success of the co-education idea, as it begins on the platform of perfect equality, without any traditions to be overridden. Mrs. Crowe says, in speaking of her lectures at the university extension in Oxford, upon what has been done in America, and upon our 60,000 women in American colleges, that it was her experience during her stay abroad that European women were found looking toward America for the largest oppor tunity for education and careers.

She was communicated with by a large number of parents, with a view sending their daughters to this country. The chief idea in their minds seemed to be a wish to give their daughters the final touch of intellectual tone and graceful self-possession that American women have acquired through the self-respect given by the general point of view of our society Mrs. Crowe's lectures at the univer-sity are upon literature. She gives a special course this winter upon George Meredith.

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR OF PEDAGOGY. Miss Julia E. Buckley, who will come into the university as an assistant professor of pedagogy, is still in Europe or leave of absence. The university is upon so generous a plan that it can af ford to give any specialist among its force the time to bring to perfest frui-tion any plan of study. Miss Buckley tion any plan of study. Miss Buckley is remarkable for her practical knowle edge of the science of teaching; abroad she is adding to her methods those of the oldest institutions. She is the daughter of a Baptist minister, and went to Plainfield, N. J., in 1872, as a teacher in the grammar school. By 1875 she was senior teacher, and in 1881 she was made Superintendent of Public Instruction, a position never before offered to a wbman. She had already organized from her high school class a special class in psychology and pedagogy, a reading class of teachers, and the well-known teachers' retreat at Chantagone. known teachers' retreat at Chautauqua Miss Buckley has the unusual gift of being able to make use of all of her mental capital. Her mind seems to be catalogued, and she loses no force by indecision or unprecision.

PHYSICAL CULTURE TUTOR.

Miss Alice B. Foster is the tutor in physical culture, and a very young woman to be a member of the facult versity believes that the human organ-ism is mind and body.

Miss Foster says that as a very young girl she read a story in Wide Awake of a school girl who went to a physical cul-ture school, and atterward she could see no career for herself, except the one she had chosen

Mrs. Zella A. Dixon, in charge of the university libraries, is equipped with all the new methods of the modern li-brarian. This work requires today a special training in bibliography, technical systems of cataloguing, methods of bringing new books before the public, and the way to stimulate people read. It requires the study of practical moral questions, also a thoroughly-trained mind.

Mrs. Dixon is a graduate of Mt. Hol-yoke. She studied library work at Columbia College, and for a year was assistant librarian there.

Leaving there she worked as a library expert. During two years she cata-logued and classified twenty-seven libraries. She was librarian for one year at Denison University and for two years librarian of the Baptist Union Theological Seminary.

She spentone year in the British Mu-seum making studies of old manuscripts, also one or two summers in the Canadian libraries, studying the different systems.

The libraries at the university consist of the general library and a reference library for each department of study. As each professor in a particular line of work requires a book for his classes, it is taken from the general collection it is taken from the general collection to the department library, and then is immediately duplicated in the general library. Reading-rooms and desks be-long with each library. All are under Mrs. Dixon's direction. She is small and young, with the pleasant, gracious ways among her books and her assistants of a young woman entertaining friends in her own

Her chief assistant, Miss Jean Col-ville, is one of the librarians trained by Mrs. Dixon during her tours as a library expert, and is master of the new systems of cataloguing.

The first fellow appointed in the new university was Miss Myra Reynolds, the daughter of a Baptist minister in Pueblo, Colo. She took her degrees at Vassar, and was for some time a proprofessor of English literature at Vassar. Miss Reynolds has for some years made a specialty of the study of the Wordsworthian school of poetry. Her degree was won by a thesis upon poetry. The past summer was spent in study in the English lake country. She had her camera, and made views, which will be used to illustrate lectures Many of them are of spots to which she was introduced by friends, which have never before been pictured nor seen by the general public of travelers at all. Miss Reynolds is the only woman fet low in English. Miss Antoinette Ely of Cincinnati is a fellow who has been a student of Leipsic University. It is a singular fact that though no German woman is allowed in the German uni-versities. American women come in as Openly and avowedly beloved of litle children, and scarcely less-al though less frankly-dear to children of a larger growth, the good Saint Valen-tine is again on his way to scatter tender messages over the land, and for those who have lived beyond the age when the cut-paper triumphs of the stationer's windows have lost their charm, yet wish to heed the sweet observances of the day, here are a lew suggestions.

FLOWER VALENTINES. By all odds the most refined and deli By all odds the most refined and delicate way of sending a tender thought from heart to heart is by means of a well-chosen gift of flowers. I say well-chosen advisedly, for just as nobody would dream of sending tube-roses to a bride, or orange blossoms to be laid on a coffin-lid, so there are flowers that one would rather not offer as a love token, and today, at least, let sentiment rather than cost govern your selection.

> If there is a very especial tie between ourself and the recipient of your valentine, and you wear on your finger the proud sign of a plighted troth, make a dainty frame of cardboard covered with white kid, silk, canvas, or fine linen, in the form of a heart, with an opening in the center for your own pictured face. Paint or embroider a cluster of forget-me-nots, trailing around the face, and, if you are shy, hide among them the Latin motto "Cor Cordium," or, if you are brave, their English equivalent, "Heart of Hearts." For a lady friend less dear, the heartshaped frame may hold a Cupid, a Psyche or a Venus. I am old-fashioned enough myself to think that a valentine is hardly worthy of its name unless accompanied by what is still best described by its sweet old English title—a posy. Our literature is full of appropriate lines, and rhyming is so easy an art, that the veriest tyro who wants something "original" can dress up an old idea into some form of verse, as I do these:

With a cluster of sweet peas:

"My thoughts are winged, like this flower, And fly to thee each passing hour; And as these clasping tendrils twine So clings my fond heart unto thine." With a basket of parsies:

'For thoughts," the Poet said, "O blosson For truth, and constancy, that jewel rare!"
"How can my thoughts but constant be When every thought is thought of thee?" And with a handful of daisies:

Shyly you pluck the petals apart— He loves me-not-" as the white leaves fall, Let me whisper the secret, sweet of my heart—
"I love thee all-in-all!"

Surely "He can do little who can't do this." SARAH H. SHAPPH

Old Father Time is responsible for this way I have described of making one fabric appear to overlap another. Let us go back a little, and see why it is. When time frets an edge into ir-regularities you will find this edge in convex curves. Nature doesn't like sharp points, and when she has her way she rounds them all down into soft curves. New hills, like the Alps, are sharp and rugged, but old ones, like those of New Hampshire, are worm down into tender undulations.

It is the same with the edge of a piece of fabric. If it is frayed by time you will find it in convex curves. in consequence of this fact of nature, though we may never have known it consciously, that the eye always, looks to find rounded curves in an irregular peerless. The statue will be made life size, and of a white California marble that is most beautiful. I do not know the name of the sculptor, but understand that he is a genius in his line. He, or rather the committee of citizens having the matter in charge, sent letters to several of the society belles of San Francisco and other cities and towns, to pose as models, There was a generous response, but, strange as it may seem, none of these girls from marble halls were selected, though many of them, in both face and figure, are greatly superior to Ada Rehan.

Agirl from Pasadena with the decidedly plebelan name of Katy Brown, the daughter of a poor railroad employé, was chosen. She is said to be so shapely that she will out-Venus the Venus of Milo, and to have a face as perfect and as spiritually beautiful as Raphael's Madonna. Katy is said to be a hoydenish, romping girl, who has played with her brothers until she is almost like one of them in manner. She is only 16, but has the development of a woman of 20, and was discovered by the wife of one of the committeemen. In fact, she was selling flowers on the street. She is tall and large, or she would not be typical of California. Her beautiful face is covered with a mass of waving, curling hair that never has known what it is to be tied in fashionable knots.

Spreckels's Audacious Speculation. [Chicago Herald.]

The Hawaiian coup d' etat has every appearance of being the premeditated work of a comparatively small number of Americans who have large pecuniary interests in the islands. The convenient presence of a force of American marines, which was landed ostensibly to protect the property of Americans, but which in reality appears to have overawed the government troops and de-posed the Queen, is significant. So also is the distinctly American make-up of the provisional government, and the immediate dispatch of commissioners to Washington to apply for annexation to the United States.

The motive is plainly disclosed by the very frank statement of the leading commissioner that under the McKinley act the American sugar-planters in the islands had lost the special advantages they enjoyed under the reciprocity treaty so long as sugar from other parts of the world was taxed some 2 cents per pound on entering American ports. Under that arrangement Claus Spreck-els and those who were interested with him practically enjoyed the same advantage in the American market that the cane-growers of Louisiana enjoyed. the cane-growers of Louisiana enjoyed. They had the full benefit of tariff prices in our markets, which were about 2 cents per pound above present prices, without paying any duties whatever. They sold more than three hundred and twelve million pounds in this country during the last year that they had the benefit of the old arrangement, and their profit due to the tariff must have exceeded $6.000,000. The statistics of their trade during the last fiscal of their trade during the last fiscal year have not yet seen the light, but there must have been a great decrease, since it is admitted by the commission-since it is admitted by the commission-ers that the sugar-planters have found itnecessary to turn their attention to tropical produce.

What these planters now want is to regain under some new arrangement what they have lost by the abolition of our duties on raw sugar. They cannot do this by overturning the monarchy and setting up a republic or any other form of independent government, nor yet by securing an American protectorate. Since they have lost the benefit of our tariff they want to get the benefit of tariff they want to get the benefit of our bounty, and that they can get only by making the islands a part of the United States. This explains why com-United States. This explains why commissioners were dispatched in hot haste to Washington. It explains why they will talk of nothing less than annexation. If the Islands are annexed, either as a State or Territory, Hawaiian canegrowers will be as much entitled to the bounty of 2 cents per pound as the Louisiana cane-growers. They will not be entitled to it otherwise. For some thirteen years our enterprising American citizens in the islands were amassing great fortunes out of the earnings of American consumers of sugar. Now they wish to add to their fortunes out of they wish to add to their fortunes out of the earnings of American taxpayers, who furnish the money out of which the sugar bounty is paid. That is why nothing short of annexation will satisfy these gentlemen.

The stake, as the above figures show, The stake, as the above figures show, is a pretty large one. It is large enough to warrant the gentlemen interested in taking considerable risks. It is large enough to warrant chem in making great efforts to work up an annexation craze in the United States, and we may be sure that they will improve their opportunities to the utmost. No doubt they will foot the bills if the American people will kindly attend mass-meetings and snpply the enthusiasm. But sober-minded citizens will first inquire whether it will pay to contribute some $6,000,000 a year for the enrichment of a few speculators, to say nothing of a greater number of millions which it would cost them in other ways, and get nothing in return but a troublesome little insular pocket possession over 2000 miles distant from San Francisco. The people of the Pacific Slope have special reasons for declining to promote this new speculation of Claus Spreckels and his associates and coadjutors. given you with one subscription to the The Book and The Times The Book and The Saturciates and coadjutors.

SEEDS GIVEN AWAY!

For the next thirty days we will give, FREE, with each yearly subscription to the SATURDAY TIMES AND WEEKLY MIRROR and $1.30, 12 packages, or sixty cents worth of garden seeds, put up in suitable packages by the well-known and reliable Los Angeles seed-house of E. Germain & Co. The same offer is made to all new three-months' mail subscribers to the DAILY TIMES paying $2.25 in advance, and to all old subscribers renewing on the same terms.

This unique offer embraces every variety of seeds: Sweet Corn, Melons, Pumpkins, Squashes, Peas, Beans, all kinds of Vegetables, etc., etc. We are enabled to make this most generous offer by reason of having purchased the seeds in immense job-lot quantities. We are building for the future, and have determined to greatly extend the already large circulation of our weekly edition, and stand this heavy expense, not for love or charity's sake, but as a matter of business, to attract a permanent patronage.

THE PAPER BETTER THAN EVER!

A department particularly adapted to the peculiar character of our Southern California agricultural and horticultural interests, carefully prepared by a practical and educated farmer, will, in the future, be a valuable feature of the SATURDAY TIMES AND WEEKLY MIRROR, and will also appear in the daily issue each Saturday. This, with the variety, reliability and general excellence of the other departments, renders this paper infinitely superior as a general family newspaper to any weekly publication in the Southwest.

HOW TO OBTAIN THE SEEDS.

Accompany your remittance and order for the paper with a plainly written list of the number of packages of each kind of seed you desire, rememing that twelve packages is the limit with a single order. For postage and packing we can not pay. It will cost you 10 cents extra which is to be added to the amount of your remittance.

If you are already a subscriber, and have paid for some time in advance, you can obtain the seeds by sending the paper to a friend in the East, or elsewhere, for a year, and have the seeds sent to you; or you can have your own subscription to the Weekly extended for a year, or for three months to the DAILY TIMES, as the case may be, and obtain the seeds. Remit by money order, postal note or draft, $1.30 for the Weekly, and 10 cents for postage and packing; or, if you wish the DAILY for 3 months, send $2.25 and 10 cents. when the paper and seeds

Rand, McNally & Co.'s Encyclopedia and Gazetteer!

A Condensation of the Encyclopedia Britannica, Chambers's Encyclopedia, etc., with the addition of Much Original Matter Treating of American Subjects. Illustrated with Eighty Fullpage Colored Maps and Nearly Two Thousand Engravings.

SUMMARY.

NEVER before has there been offered to the public a book of reference approaching this one in completeness, compactness, or cheapness. It contains 720 pages of encyclopedic information concerning all branches of knowledge, comprising in a condensed form, stripped of unnecessary verbiage, the very cream of the Encyclopedia Britannica and the latest edition of Chambers's Encyclopedia, with the addition of a great many American subjects found in neither of the larger encyclopedias. Besides being a comprehensive gazetteer of universal knowledge, it is also a complete Atlas of the World, containing eighty full-page maps. Some idea may be gained of the magnitude of this wonderful work and the vast number of subjects treated of, from the following table:

Number	Size	Columns	Lines	Words	Total	Total	Total	Number	Length of	Number of

If the columns were placed end to end they would reach over one-third of a mile. Just think of 1800 feet of choice reading, compiled from the latest sources on 18,000 subjects of daily interest to everybody, for a sum per word that requires five figures to express the fraction, and 80 Full-page Maps Free, the whole forming the largest, latest, and most complete Family Cyclopedia ever produced. The maps are corrected to date and beautifully colored by our celebrated patent plate process, to distinguish States and political boundaries. The ordinary price of an atlas alone, containing these maps, would be at least as much as is asked for this entire book, of which they form but a single feature.

Handsomely bound in cloth, with gold title, and side stamp, $8.00. With the Daily Times 3 mos., $5.00; 1 year, $11.95; with the Weekly 1 year, $3.30.

ders-Surplice Bodices-An Oriental Idea for a Neglige-"Style Becomes Us All."

Special Correspondence of The Times. Panis, Jan. 13 -If a little encourage ment is needed to persuade the conservative woman that a gown hanging from the shoulders is not at this writing a violent wrench to properties, it ought to be found in the gown I am about to describe belonging to the Princesse de Brancoven, which has just been made by Morin-Blossier. I have examined with some care this simple and beautiful robe, and cannot perhaps serve my readers better than by giving a detailed description of it; the more especially as it affords a good landmark of what seems to be the turn of an epoch in dress. This gown is made in one piece. In front there is a short rounded yoke taking in the shoulders. The garment hangs from this with but very few gathers, because of a straight-gored seam down the middle of the front, which relieves the waist of much fullness and gives elegance to the gown. The back has no yoke, but has two box-plaits, each two inches wide, laid close together down the middle, from the neck to the bottom of the waist, and these, with the gored seam from thence down, furnish the fullness of the skirt, The back fits smoothly over the waist, but is without forms. The garment is hooked up in the back between the Gown of Princess Brancovan.

The sleeves are full and soft at the top, the peculiar droop of the puff being made by gathering not only round the armhole, but also of the upper side down the inside seam to the el-bow turn. They are pointed Medicis fashion on the wrists.

The material is a ground of mauve satin cross-hatched with lines of black velvet. Velour pointinelle is the name for it. A band of sable borders the yoke and the skirt. The waist is confined by a jewelled belt, a link woven gold chain enriched with gemmed and enamelled bosses. The pocket is a reticule of the velour lined with mauve satin, sewed against the skirt and having ribbon ex tending to the belt.

This gown is not intended for a neglige, but is a reception robe. Thus the pendulum swings, and among many bad revivals of the moment can be noted the occasional piece with some intrinsic claim to beauty. Not more than a year ago I advocated and described such a garment as this for the old. I should not then have dared to the highest stamp of the mode.

STYLE RECONCILES ALL. Though there are so many revivals it would be a mistake to say that almost anything is in style. The short-waisted Empire; the flaring revers of the Di rectoire; the triangular-waisted Louis Phillippe, and innumerable modern forms are seen, but there is, after all, but one style, for all are reconciled by the ideal of the moment. In what loes it consist? Ah, this is what is commonly considered undemonstra-ble, indefinable. But at least some of cade of some rich ground, or of a cloth commonly considered undemonstrable, indefinable. But at least some of its signs can be pointed out. The skirt wide at the bottom, bordered and reaching the ground; the round waist, belted and without darts; the emphasis of horizontal lines, particularly round the bust; the sleeves puffed at top and without ornament; the front hair rising high above the forehead, even when banged; the small bonnet with its standing plume or pompon; these form the profile of the fashionable dress from whatever epoch its elements have come down. Râchel in a costume Louis-Philippe looks not a great deal like Bernhardt in the costume called today Louis-Philippe. Rachel's gown shows her feet ground, or of a cloth will show. SKIRT BORDERS. All skirts are now bordered. It may e with only a narrow rouche or ruftl at bottom, or it may be with many parallellines set close or far apart, ex-tending up as far as you will, even nearly to the belt. Fur in narrow bands is very much used for trimmin Only the dark varieties are seen. Oth trimmings are of many rows of silk or satin pipings. These are suitable for cloth and other wool gowns, also for velvet. I have seen an evening gown of yellow silk veiled with white net embroidered lace that has for border a two-inch wide piping fold of shot gray and yellow velvet. A layer of cotton batting inside makes a roll of it and rives it the little stiffness that is now liked, and it is interrupted by being drawn up at intervals into two loops that are twisted into a rosette. Another evening garniture is made by gathering a two-inch moire ribbon in a zig-zag line, which gives an undulating edge. This makes a good heading for a lace ruffle.

One of the newest ideas for an elaborate skirt border is a facing with its upper edge cut fancifully and appliqued Thus velvet on cloth, sometimes fur follows this outline and sometimes braiding. The latter is placed on the braiding. The latter is placed on the upper fabric. One of our illustrations shows a novelty wool of mixed red and of black velvet outlined with fur. Jet is very much used on black silks, velvet also, which is on everything, and black thread lace. Very dressy black silk gowns have borders of lace laid on flat, the edge upward, and colored silk laid underneath. The colored silk is cut to follow the irregular edge of the lace and the whole appliqued down to-gether. I have seen a dinner gown of black silk with lace a half yard deep thus laid on the front breadths with gray underneath. A fringe ruche of the black silk finishes the bottom. The back breadths were untrimmed. The effect is very rich. For a shorter skirt the border should go all the way round

Long fringes of jet, called expressly "jet rain" in Paris, are in great vogue for waists. They hang from the neck

down over the bust, or from the height of the bust down below the belt—the latter is most chic—or from the shoulders down round the armhole to the depth of the waist. Jet belts also en-rich black silks. They are very narrow, or else fancifully wide and shaped to the figure. Fine jet is used also to em-broider silk and velvet, as I have men-tioned before, which adds another to the tasks of the sewing woman.

Many waists are being made with diagonal fronts in surplice manner. The shoulders are plain and the sides are crossed and drawn down in gathers, a bow being placed at a point on the outside where the gathers center. Sometimes they center at the belt, but often one side is plain and high, and the other is drawn across and gathered at one side of the bust. Often revers of velvet are made to reconcile themselves with this sort of front. They must be wide and flaring, reaching well out over the sleeves, a la Robespierre. This is a good design for a black silk day gown. Our picture shows such a design for a black silk, with the lower sleeves and the high gunupe embroidered with jet. The skirt for this should be round and full and trimmed with many rows of velvet pipings. Another diagonal waist with one side high has the diagonal line cut side where the gathers center. Some one side high has the diagonal line cut to make an angle on the bust, and 'the line is edged with a fall of lace. A waist of this character is shown in the red and black novelty wool described above. The hat with this dress is of red felt, black velvet and tips.

FOR BREAKFAST. A charming breakfast blouse can be made in this way. On a waist lining lay a front and high neck band of bro-cade of some rich ground, or of a cloth embroidered. Only the front and neck some five or six inches at the wrist and embroidered. The wide Oriental belt shown in the picture, of the color and material of the vest, can be dispensed with, though it is very ornamental.

Nonconformists and Music.

Nonconferentists and Manie.

For more than two centuries it has been a fundamental principle of the nonconformist conscience that all instrumental music on Sundays is sinful, even when used for a "religious purpose." Bishop Earle, in his portrait of a rich "nonconformist" lady in 1628, says that "she suffered not her daughters to learn on the virginals, because of their affinity with organs." The fathers of nonconformity, in virginals, because of their affinity with organs." The fathers of nonconformity, in their first admonition to parliament in 1570, gravely informed the lords and commons that "organ players came from the pope, as out of the Trojan horse's belly, for the destruction of God's kingdom," which was their convenient synonym for Presbyterian nonconformity. "That old serpent, Pope Vitalian," said the nonconformist ministers, "brought up organs," and "two other monsters, Popes Gregory and Gelasins, inspired by the devil," were the authors of "Plainsong and Pricksong."

When the nonconformist conscience, some seventy years later, had a parliament completely at its, own disposal and eager completely at its own disposal and eager to satisfy all its demands, commissioners were sent all over England to destroy the organs as "abominations" in the sight of the Lord. Evelyn said, in 1654, that they were then "almost universally demoi-ished." Any one who wishes to know something in detail of the nonconformist campaign against music on Sundays should read the entries in the "Journal of Will Dowsing," "the parliamentary visitor," who laid waste the Suffolk churches in 1643 and 1644. Dowsing had a warrant from the Earl of Manchester for demolishing pictures, painted glass, superstitious images and organs,—London Saturday Re-

Some Very Old Pronunciations. "Laylock," the pronunciation of lilac once very common, has now almost en-tirely passed away. It is hardly likely to be found in dictionaries or glossaries, except such as profess to give provincial vari ations of spelling. Sixty years ago, how ever, it was by no means a provincialism or a mark of the uneducated. I well re-member that Walter Savage Landor always spoke of "laylocks," as did my own mother and most people of that generation. It belonged to the age, now almost entirely passed away, which called Rome "Room," gold "goeld," St. James "St. Jeames," with other variations of sound now deemed vulgar. I have heard my father say that George IV always spoke of "My loyal city of Lunnon;" while "obleeged" and "cow cumber" were heard from the most refined mouths.

I can distinctly remember on the first Sunday in Advent, 1825, hearing the of-ficiating clergyman at St. Mary Woolnoth give out sonorously, when reading the first give out sonorously, when reading the first lesson, "like a lodge in a garden of cowcumbers," and my dear old rector, Julius Charles Hare, twenty years later, adopted the same pronunciation, saying at table,

Stedman on Whittier. Taken for all in all, Whitter, "our bard and prophet best beloved," that purely American minstrel, so virginal and so impassioned, at once the man of peace and the poet militant, is the Sir Galahad of American song. He has read the hearts of his own people, and chanted their emotions and powerfully affected their convictions. His lyrics of freedom and reform, in his own justified language, were "words wrung from the nation's heart, forged at white heat." Longfellow's national poems, with all their finish, cannot rival the nat ural art of Whittier's; they lack the glow the earnestness, the intense characteriza tion of such pieces as "Randolph of Ro anoke," "Ichabod" and "The Lost Occa

"Let me see," said he, "Of course they can always be procured at any postoffice. But, obviously, there are few of our young collectors who can afford to buy them in that fashion, inas-much as an entire series would cost $16.26. For most of them the only practicable method will be to obtain the stamps already cancelled. That will be easy enough so far as the lower denomi-nations are conceived but not so with nations are concerned, but not so with the higher denominations." "But on what mail matter will these high-cost stamps be used?" I asked.

"The high-priced Columbian stamps,' said the Postmaster-General—"those which represent $1, $2, $3, $4 and $5 dollars each, will be largely in de mand by bankers and brokers for mailing bonds and other securities to Europe. Such valuables go in sealed packages at regular foreign letter rates, which are 5 cents a half ounce. At that rate a very moderate sized bundle that rate a very moderate sized bundle will cost as much as $5 for postage across the ocean. In this manner a large part of the stamps of big denominations will go abroad. American boys and girls will not get these for their albums. However, a great many of these high-cost stamps will also be used for mailing large packages at letter rates mailing large packages at letter rates from place to place in this country. People often send big parcels containing valuable things in that way at 2 cents an ounce, sealed and registered. I dare say you know that you can transmit through the post anything you like—no matter how bulky and heavy it is—so long as you pay letter rates on it, though you cannot forward any package exceeding four pounds at the ordinary charges for merchandise. Young collectors must rely on getting the cancelled stamps from parcels forwarded in this manner at letter rates. "That does not solve the puzzle, I know," Mr. Wanamaker continued.

"Of course, big packages sent at 2 cents an ounce, sealed and registered because their contents are valuable, do not reach every merchant or professional man. The bankers are most likely to get them, and I would recommend the boys and girls who are anxious to procure the high-priced .Columbus stamps to make friends with people at the banks with a view to secur-ing possession of such coveted treas-ures. A good-natured cashier or teller would be very apt to find an opportunity to detach a few of the cancelled stamps from bundles of securities once in a while. It is well worth trying, because these curiosities are likely to go up con-siderably in value on account of the difficulty of obtaining them. I suppose that dealers in stamps will not sell them

Three billions of the Columbus stamps have been ordered to be printed. They are being made by the American Bank Note Company in New York city, which turns out all of the postage stamps issued by Uncle Sam.

HOW THE POSTMASTERS GET STAMPS. When a postmaster wants stamps he writes to the Postoffice Department at Washington for them. The department sends on the order to the Government stamp agent in New York, who has charge of the business of distributing all stamps. The agent draws every day upon the Bank Note Company for as many stamps as he requires to fill such The Whist Players.

He receives them in the latest the windows are open; a speciages according to the orders, in packages according to the orders, and mailed to the postmasters who re-quire them. Last year the people of this country used up 2,500,000,000 postage stamps.
COLUMBUS STAMPS GOOD FOR USE THE NEXT

CENTURY. It is expected that all of the 8,000,-000,000 of Columbus stamps will be used during 1893. If this number proves insufficient more will be ordered. Supposing that any are left over at the end of the Columbus year, the sale of them will be continued until they are gone. They will be just as good for mailing letters 100 years hence as they are now.

Nobody is obliged to purchase the Columbus stamps now unless he chooses, every postmaster having been instructed to furnish ordinary postage stamps to anybody who asks for them. Many persons prefer the ordinary ones because they are smaller, not requiring such a big lick. such a big lick.

A FEW FACTS ABOUT THE NEW STAMPS. The designs for the Columbus stamps were picked out by the Postoffice De partment, most of them being obtained partment, most of them being obtained from historical paintings; but the Bank Note Company made the designs and engraved the plates from which they are printed at its own expense. Work upon them has been going on ever since last September. The engravings were the most costly ever produced in the world for postage stamps, though the printing is not so expensive as was that printing is not so expensive as was that of the United States stamps in two colors, issued a few years ago, which had to pass twice through the press. Inasmuch as the new stamps are distributed to postmasters only as they are required, and of whatever denominations may be asked for it is impossible.

are required, and of whatever denominations may be asked for, it is impossible to say how many of the high-priced ones will be issued. It all depends on the demand, and how great that will be no one can tell.

Hitherto the highest denomination of an ordinary nearest denomination of the property programme has been

Hitherto the highest denomination of an ordinary postage stamp has been 90 ceuts, though stamps for newspapers—which are not good for any other purpose—run from 1 cent as high as $60. The Columbus stamps will, doubtless, be bought in large quantities, uncancelled, for collections by people who can afford the luxury, and this will bring a profit to the Government.

The Columbus stamps are printed from engraved steel plates big enough to strike off 400 of them on a sheet with a single stroke of the press.

Each sheet then passes beneath a revolving brush carrying mucillage, by which the back of it is gummed. After this it is dried and flattened under an hydraulic press. Next it is run through a perforating machine, which is an arrangement of little wheels revolving parallel to each other and just far enough apart to make the perforations as one seen them in a sheet of stamps.

fresh brought. After the perforations have been made across the sheet one way by the machine, the sheet must pass through a second perforating machine for the cross perforations, the stamps being thus outlined so as to be readily torn apart. Knives cut each of the sheets into four sheets of 100 stamps each. All stamps come in sheets of 100 for sale.

of 100 for sale.

They are now done and only remain to be gone over, counted and tagged in packages of 100 sheets each, before being sent out. Each package contains 10,000 stamps, of course. As they are printed the sheets of stamps are care-fully counted, and if one is ever so slightly defective, though but one stamp is injured or imperfect, the sheet is destroyed and carefully accounted

The old idea of 40 years ago was that facial eruptions were due to a "blood humor," for which they gave potash Thus all the old sarsaparillas contain pot ash, a nauscating mineral, that instead of de creasing, actually creates more eruptions. You have noticed this when taking other Sarsaparillas than Joy's It is however now known that the stomach, the blood creating power, is the seat of allytitating or cleansing operations. A stomach clogged by indigestion or constipation, vitiates the blood, result pimples. A clean stomach and healthful digestion purifies it and they disappear. Thus Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla is compounded after the modern idea to regulate the bowels and stimulate the digestion. The effect is immediate and satisfactory. A short testimonia to con-trast the action of the potash Sarsaparillas and Joy's modern vegetable preparation. Stuart, of 400 Hayes St., S. F., writes: "I have for years had indigestion. I tried a popular San saparilla but it actually caused more pimples to break out on my face. Hearing that Joy's was a later preparation and acted differently I tried it, and the pimples immediately disappeared.
